DEATH OF LORD CLARENDON.

His Probable Successor—Eulogies in the House of Commons—Action at Washington—Letter of Sympathy Telegraphed to Minister Motley from Secretary Fish.

LONDON, June 27.—The Earl of CLARENDON died, quite suddenly, yesterday. He was seventy years old. Lord CLARENDON was protrated by excessive labor, and had for a long time been subject to violent attacks of gout, but the immediate cause of his death was diarrhœa, with which he was seized on Friday. When first attacked, his Lordship paid no attention to the disease, which, operating on a debilitated system, soon became dangerous, and within three days terminated fatally. A state ball, which was to have been given by the Prince of WALES, has been postponed in consequence of the melancholy event. It is believed that Earl GRANVILLE will exchange the Department of Colonies for that of Foreign Affairs. In the House of Lords, to-night, Earl GRANVILLE, in feeling terms announced the death of Lord CLARENDON. He praised the deceased for his ability, sagacity, experience and moderation. His brilliant wit, his conversational powers, and his conciliatory temper were known to all. He had a marked influence with the Queen, with all parties, and with foreign Courts and their representatives. Lord GRANVILLE said he believed he would best honor the wishes of the deceased by not moving the customary adjournment of the House. The Duke of RICHMOND, the Earl of DERBY and Earl COWLEY followed with similar eulogies.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The British Minister having announced to the Secretary of State this morning the death of the Earl of CLARENDON, the President directed a message of sympathy and regret to be transmitted through our Minister at London. The following dispatch was therefore sent by telegraph to Mr. MOTLEY:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27, 1870.

Mr. Motley, Minister, London:

The death of the Earl of CLARENDON removes a statesman whose fame belongs to the world, and whose loss will be felt by other nations than that in whose behalf he labored for the advance of civilization and in the interests of peace. The President tenders the sympathy of the United States to Her Majesty and to the British people, and condolence to those to whom the loss brings personal grief.

THE INDIANS.

Murders Among the Chippewas—Bell Closed.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Brevet Capt. GEO. ARTHESON, Indian Agent for the Chippewas, reports two murders having been committed in that agency within a month, the cause of which is attributed to intoxication among Indians, the victims and the offenders both being very drunk. The agent writes, notwithstanding that there are several parties indicted for selling liquor to Indians, the officers seems to go on unmolested. Friend SANFORD, M. JAMES, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Northern Superintendency, writes from Omaha under date of 23d instant, to the Indian Commissioner, He says on that day he had an interview with RED CLOUD and his chiefs on the subject of peace between the SIOUX and the PAWNEES. He represented to them that his people as well as the Pawnees were at peace with each other, and that the Pawnee chiefs had expressed their willingness to make a treaty of amity with the SIOUX, claiming further that the great Father had chosen the Pawnees Friends as men of peace, and long known as the friends of the Indians, and placed them in charge of the Pawnees, in order that they might be improved and rendered peaceable. Superintendent JAMES also suggested that the Pawnee chiefs would meet RED CLOUD and Chief BEAR, at Fort Sedgwick, if they would stop there on their way out.

RED CLOUD'S REPLY.

RED CLOUD replied that the Pawnees had once been friendly with the SIOUX, but had turned against them; while they were contending for their rights; that they had joined them while soldiers, and had killed many of the best men among the SIOUX. He could not stop now to make a treaty with them; he had not the time, nor could he do it without consulting his people. He would meet them at Fort Sedgwick to the same effect; but he used some expressions which lead Superintendent JAMES to believe that a good impression was made upon them, and he hopes that further reflection will induce them to look favorably upon the proposition.

SPOTTED TAIL'S TROUBLES.

Death of his Favorite Wife—Her Death Attributed to White Influence by the Sioux—Chief.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, June 27.—Advices from the Whetstone Agency, Dakota Territory, are to the effect that SPOTTED TAIL's favorite wife died on the 20th inst., the day before his arrival. All the presents received by him while in the East were buried with her, and it was thought that he would sacrifice the horses purchased for him here. The good results hoped for on account of his visit to Washington and New-York may be regarded as disrupted for the present, as he attributes her death to white influence.

PRINCETON COLLEGE.

Exercises of Class Day—The Class Poem and Oration—Planting the Ivy—Other Peculiar Ceremonies.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 27.—The CLASS Day exercises at Princeton College were, as usual, the great event of Commencement week. The town was full of people from all parts of the country, and at 1 o'clock a large and brilliant audience of ladies and gentlemen assembled in the First Presbyterian Church to witness the exercises, which commenced at that hour under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM P. SCHELL, Master of Ceremonies. The class Poem, which was delivered by Mr. THOMAS SEPHER, the Class Poet, was of greater excellence than usually characterizes these productions, and elicited warm and sincere applause from a critical audience. Mr. THOMAS BROWN, of Washington, D. C., then delivered the class oration, after which the class joined in singing an original ode composed by Mr. A. H. JOLINE, of New-York. This part of the programme was completed by prayer and the benediction by the late President of the College, the venerable Dr. MCCOSH. After leaving the church, the classes formed in order, under the superintendence of their respective marshals, and preceded by the Faculty and GRAFULLA'S Seventh Regiment Band, marched to the library, where a very handsome and costly edition of KNIGHT'S Cyclopædia was presented to the library in behalf of the class by Mr. GLENN, of North Carolina, and accepted by Dr. MCCOSH in a neat speech, in which he said that a fund of $100,000 had just been secured for the support of the library and embellishment of the grounds. The audience then proceeded to the gymnasium, and after an oration by Mr. THOMAS SWENZ, the "ivy" was planted at the east end, and its position marked by a neat marble slab with the inscription "'70."

Seats had been arranged surrounding the large common, and here, under the trees, in the rear of the gymnasium, the remainder of the exercises took place. A witty history of "'70's" doings and misdeeds was read by FRANK HAWTHORNE PIERCE, of New-Hampshire. Pipes and tobacco were then passed to the class, who had seats in the inner circles. Amid general smoke and good humor the event of the day, the speech of the presentation orator, Mr. HENRY HARRIS, of Belvidere N. J., was delivered. The "first honor" was presented to Mr. ROBERT ACHEW, who had been elected to the position of "laziest man," and to whom was presented a very handsome night-cap and pillow, with convenience attached for always carrying them near. Mr. DEWITT, "the infant of the class," who measures six feet two inches, was invested with a rubber ring and rattle, some candy, a nurse-bottle filled with milk, and a young lamb as a playmate. The "Mean Grin," which is an invention of the class, but very old, was presented to Mr. KIRKPAD, of Kentucky, and the gentleman certainly gave a very fine exemplification of the article in question. He received as prezzie some "brass" and a little "hard cheek." Mr. PETOE, of New-York, the "honor man" of the class, was presented with a corn-cob as a reward for the best mustache. Mr. CHARLES IRELIS, of Jersey City, "the wittiest man," received a handsomely framed certificate of election to the position of "Bones" in KELLY & LEON'S Minstrels, and "the most inquisitive man," Mr. C. MOORE, received a woman as the best exemplification of the art interrogative. A four-foot neck-tie was presented to Mr. S. GUMBERT, as "the noblest man," and a jumping jack, with a potato set in a tin cup, in imitation of the splendid ring presented last week, for being the best gymnast. "The wickedest man," and "the man with the biggest foot," also received suitable prizes.

In the eighth inning, the Unions made four, and the Athletics then made a most extraordinary run of 25, by heavy batting, assisted by poor fielding. In the last inning the Unions changed pitcher, and the game closed 41 to 30 in favor of the Athletics. The Athletics made five home runs, and the Unions four. The following is the score:

A barn near the blacksmith shop, owned by Dr. CRITTENDEN, was also destroyed; loss not known. The wind was south-east, the barn opposite was the town hall, and a dwelling-house and meat-market, owned and occupied by E. WILSON, destroyed; loss not known. The public school next east was also destroyed, and but for the timely aid of the Water Cure engine the Methodist Church would soon have been in flames. The fire was extinguished by Dr. POTTER's The buildings all being of wood, it was impossible to say but little. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to be from a pipe, there being two or three men at work in the barn.

THE BEETHOVEN TEMPLE.

New Hall of the Beethoven Maennerchor—Laying the Corner-Stone.

Yesterday afternoon the corner-stone of the new hall of the German Singing Society Beethoven Maennerchor, of this City, was laid on one of the two lots acquired by the Society, Nos. 16 and 18 Fifth-street, near the Bowery. The members of the Society, to the number of about 600, assembled early in the afternoon at the Bowery Street head-quarters, No. 47 Sixth-street. After Mayor HALL and some other City officials, who had been invited had joined the party, the Society and their invited guests, the latter in carriages, proceeded, headed by a band of music, to the building lots. The streets through which the procession moved were Sixth-street, Second-avenue, First-avenue, First-street, Seventh-street, Avenue A, Houston-street, the Bowery and Fifth-street. In all these streets a large number of houses, chiefly the residences of the members of the Society, were very handsomely and richly decorated with American and German flags, and pictures and busts of BEETHOVEN were to be seen in several houses. The most interesting spectacle, however, was presented by the thousands of spectators themselves, who had assembled on the streets named in order to look at the procession, all those streets being densely thickened by Germans. There were at least 20,000 people in the streets. The buildings on Fifth-street adjoining the lots for the new hall, were also very tastefully decorated. There was a platform erected on the site of the proposed new building which was protected by flags from the rays of the burning sun. After the procession had arrived, the exercises were opened by the singers of the Society who sang "This is the Lord's Own Day," by C. KEMPNER. Mr. JOSEPH M. OHMEIS, the President of the Society, made a short opening address on the history of the Society and its endeavors for the future, and introduced the Mayor to the audience.

Hon. A. OAKEY HALL made an address about the musical celebrities of the great German composer BEETHOVEN, and about the endeavors of the German element to introduce music in this country. Messrs. HALL and OHMEIS, and Mr. JULIUS POSNECKER, the mason, who is to do the masonry of the new building, then laid the corner-stone which contains several documents referring to the Society, copies of the daily newspapers, several United States pieces coined this year, &c. While this part of the ceremonies was going on, the chorus of the Society sang "The German Song," by KALLIWODA. Mr. MAGNUS GROSS then delivered the Festival speech, in which he chiefly dwelt on the history of the German element in this City and country, during the last hundred years, and their endeavors and achievements in introducing the musical art in this country. The exercises were concluded with the song, "The Heavens Sing God's Glory," by BEETHOVEN, sung by the chorus of the Society, Mr. CARL TRAUGOTT, musical director of the Society, conducted the singing. At 4 o'clock the Society proceeded to Niblo's Garden, corner of Third-avenue and Fifty-eighth-street, where a Summer night's festival was held, which was spoiled, however, so far as members are concerned, to some degree, by the thunder-storm which occurred toward evening. The evening entertainment consisted of music performed by the Maennerchor, and songs sung by the Beethoven Maennerchor, and dancing. The whole festival was a complete success throughout. The Society intends to have their hall erected in time for the celebration of the centennary of LUDWIG VON BEETHOVEN, on December 17 next, on which occasion they will perform the opera "Fidelio," and the oratorio "Christ on the Mount of Olives," both by BEETHOVEN.

AGROUND.

Accident to the City of Hartford—A Submerged Rock Struck in the Connecticut River.

On Sunday evening, while on her way to this City, the steamer City of Hartford struck at a submerged rock in the Connecticut River, midway between the towns of Middle Haddam and Middletown. A severe shock was felt on board, and for some time there was much consternation among the passengers, but no damage was at the point where the accident occurred is not very wide, the steamer was run on shore, and the excitement soon wore off, and was replaced by the disagreeable sensation of being, in plain terms, "stuck in the mud," the vessel having been run into the soft muddy bottom of the river to shore.

The cause of the accident is stated, is the shallow state of the river at present, owing to the great drouth which has dried up many of the finite rivulets that help to swell the current of the Connecticut River. Old seamen, who have navigated from Hartford to New-York from their boyhood, said that the water has never been so low as it is just now.

The passengers, after some hours in waiting, were rewarded by the sight of the City of New-York, which took off those desiring to pursue their journey to New-York. The Silver Star, bound for Hartford, showed equal consideration by taking on board all who wished to return to Hartford.

The Hartford is very little damaged in the hull, while the freight it is declared is intact and has suffered but little, if any, by the catastrophe. The Company has sent a steamer to the assistance of the disabled vessel, and she will be brought to this City for repairs. The travel on the line will not, however, be in any way interrupted, as the Company has put on the Granite State in place of the Hartford, which will in a few days be in a condition to resume her station on the line. No blame attaches to the pilot of the Hartford, as the accident could not have occurred if the river had been in its usual condition.

Personal.

Gen. JOHN COCHRANE is to deliver the address at the celebration of the soldiers and citizens of Poughkeepsie on the coming 4th of July.

The steam-ships City of Paris, from Liverpool 15 and Queenstown June 17, and the Persia, from Havre June 17, and Brest June 18, arrived at this port, yesterday, bringing five days later news than the Denmark. We acknowledge the courtesy of the Pursers of both steamers in promptly delivering our mail packages.

The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says that M. EMILE DE GIRARDIN is disposing of the Liberté, and that M. LESSEPS and the Duke D'ABRUZZES are to be the purchasers, and that one of the conditions of the sale is that the present editor is to be a Senator.

A trial, which it is said will be one of the most gigantic on record, was about to take place in Hungary. The accused are brigands, 800 in number, and it is expected that 200 of them will be condemned to death.

The Armonia announces from Italy that all the mills in the neighborhood of Bologna had closed on account of the tax on grinding. Gen. CORNE had left Florence in all haste for that city, fearing some disturbance.

The Paris Temps published a short time ago an account of an accident which had occurred to some members of a choral society near Vevey, Switzerland, by which some twenty persons were said to have been drowned. That journal now states that it had been made the victim of a hoax, as no such event had happened.

A queer story is told by one of the Greek papers. One of the military commanders having offered a reward for each brigand's head brought in, the supply soon became so extensive that suspicions were aroused. Inquiry was set on foot, and disclosed the fact that with an eye to the main chance, the so-called brigand-hunters made raids into neighboring villages, plundered them, and then turned the heads of their victims to account.

In the case of the Queen against HURT (the men in women's clothes case) the Judge had fixed the amount of bail at £1,500 for the defendant himself, and two sureties in like amount, with forty-eight hours' notice to the prosecution. In the case of PRESS, it was arranged that four sureties in £500 each should be required, with forty-eight hours' notice. Le Nord says that Mr. CUMMING, against whom a warrant has been issued in connection with the charge of procuring women, went to Brussels immediately after the arrest of FAURE and HURTON, and put up at one of the best hotels. As, however, he had no papers, and could not give evidence as to his means of existence, he was requested to leave the country. The Nord adds that when he was called upon he had his hair in curl papers, and that portraits in which he and a friend were represented in women's clothes were found in his room.

FUNERAL OF CHARLES DICKENS.

Another Occupant of the "Poet's Corner"—Consolations as to a Burial-Place—Grave of Dickens—The Obituarists—A Contingency Provided for—Gads-Hill—Rochester—The Mystery of Edwin Drood.

From the London Daily News, June 15.

The mortal remains of Mr. CHARLES DICKENS were deposited in Poet's Corner, Westminster Abbey, at an early hour yesterday morning. On Friday last, on the day on which Mr. DICKENS' lamented death became known, Dr. STANLEY, the Dean of Westminster, had an interview with Mr. CHARLES DICKENS, the younger, and proposed that our great English author should be interred in Westminster Abbey. From that time until Monday evening the matter was under earnest consideration. Mr. DICKENS' family took counsel with friends, discussed and decided, and after due deliberation and consultation on the terms of the written instructions they held, asked the Dean of Westminster whether it would be possible to have certain conditions complied with if they consented that the interment should be at Westminster.

THE GRAVE.

The answer was satisfactory, and CHARLES DICKENS lies, without one of his injunctions respecting his funeral having been violated, surrounded by poets and men of genius. Shakspeare's marble effigy looked yesterday into his grave; near him lie Ben Jonson and David Garrick; his head is by Addison and Handel, while Oliver Goldsmith, Rowe, Southey, Campbell, Thomson, Sheridan, Macready and Thackeray, or their memorials, encircle him; and "Poet's Corner," the most familiar place in the Abbey, has received an illustrious addition to its peculiar glory. Separated from Dickens' grave, by the statues of Shakespeare, Southey and Thomson, and close by the door to "Poet's Corner," are the memorials of Ben Jonson, Dr. Samuel Butler, Milton, Spenser and Gray; while Pitt, Fox, Dryden, Cowley, Addison, Goldsmith and Prior are hard by. Well shall the bystander, with their wealth of great names, now,

"There posts near our Princes sleep
And in one grave their mansion keep."

THE POET'S CORNER.

The twenty months which GEOFFREY CHAUCER spent as clerk of the works in the reign of RICHARD II., were the indirect cause of the special sanctity with which Englishmen have for nearly five centuries invested the spot where DICKENS rests. His death in the house made over to him in virtue of his official position by the keeper of the Lady Chapel of the Abbey, led to his being buried at the entrance of St. Benedict's Chapel, and from the times of SPENSER, his next great poet who followed him a century later, to yesterday, Poet's Corner has been what its name implies, the chosen receptacle for those whom England has regarded as her greatest and best. BEAUMONT followed SPENSER, and was laid in a nameless grave. Then came what Dean STANLEY terms "the cry and counter-cry" over the ashes of SHAKESPEARE, of whom BEN JONSON wrote:

"To Shakespeare, sire, I will not judge thee by
Chaucer or Spenser, or the Beaumont lie
A little farther off to make thee room,
Thou art a monument without a tomb,
And art alive still while the best men live,
And we have wits to read, and praise to give."

The remains of SHAKESPEARE were, it is needless to repeat, never removed, the anathema of the poet against those who should "dig his bones or dig his dust" precluding the attempt, and the shrine of him, which stands by DICKENS' grave, was not erected until a century after his death. BEN JONSON's request to CHARLES I. to grant him a grave, the reply of his sovereign, "Rise a poet, the reply of a monarch, "Rise a peer," and the reply of Westminster Abbey "Rise all descended with his birth, as well as the 'Crown' Ben Jonson," and the mausoleum on which the sculptor has by mistake put the buttons on the wrong side of the coat. The thousands who visited the Abbey yesterday, and the thousands more who will revive their memory of it by visiting DICKENS' grave, will find an ample store of traditions such as those in the records of this southern transept, or Poet's Corner.

THE FUNERAL.

DICKENS' obsequies were as simple as he desired. The news that CHARLES DICKENS was dead reached London early yesterday morning, and that it carried his relatives, was soon telegraphed to London; but every arrangement had been completed beforehand, and there was no one in the Abbey, no one to follow the three simple mourning coaches and the hearse, no one to obtrude upon the mourners. The railway stations at Charing-cross Station was set apart for the latter for the quarter of an hour they remained there; the Abbey doors were closed directly they reached it; and even the mourning-coaches were not permitted to wait. A couple of street-cabs and a single brougham took the funeral party away when the last solemn rites were over, so that pageantry was unknown—that cry against it was being conducted; and it was not until a good hour after that the south transept began to fill. There were no clocks, no weepers, no hands, no scarves, no feathers—none of the distinctive signs of the undertaker's craft. Yesterday, being the Rector Sunday, that particular of Great Expectations in which the Princess of Sos Gargery's wife is described, he will there find full details of the miserable things omitted. In the same part of the same volume he will find several allusions to the place where Dickens meant to pass, and that which resulted instead for him, he will find nothing into the world, and can take nothing out, and how it seeth like a shadow, and never continueth long in one stay;" and will think of the solemn scene in Westminster Abbey, yesterday morning, with the Dean reciting our solemn burial service, the organ chanting in subdued and low, and the mourners taken away, one the little coffin of heavenly-born people, by an open grave. A plain oak coffin, with a brass plate bearing the inscription,

CHARLES DICKENS,
BORN FEBRUARY 7TH, 1812,
DIED JUNE 9TH, 1870,

a coffin strewed with wreaths and flowers by the female mourners, and then—dust to dust and ashes to ashes!—such was the funeral of the great man who has gone. In coming to the Abbey, in the first coach were the late Mr Dickens' children, Mr. Charles Dickens, Jun., Mr. Harry Dickens, Miss Dickens, Mrs. Charles Collins. In the second coach were the Dean's brother; Mr. Charles Dickens, Jun.; Miss Hogarth, the sister-in-law; Mr. John Forster. In the third coach, Mr. Frank Beard, his medical attendant; Mr. Charles Collins, his son-in-law; Mr. Ouvry, his solicitor; Mr. Wilkie Collins; Mr. Edmund Dickens, his nephew.

GADS-HILL.

To meet the chance of the friendly and sympathetic necrotisations for the interment in Westminster Abbey falling through, due inquiry was made at Rochester Cathedral, and it was expressed positionally that a burial should take place there. The ecclesiastical authorities of Rochester made no difficulty as to closing the cathedral during the ceremony, and a site was viewed on which there would have been ample room for the erection of a fitting memorial. There would, moreover, have been a certain appropriateness in the selection had Rochester been decided on. Literary pilgrims would have made their way thither from all parts of the earth just as they do now to Stratford-on-Avon; and men would have told each other how the great English humorist and teacher had returned to the scenes of his youth in the days of his virtuous maturity. Though not born at Rochester, Mr. DICKENS spent some portion of his boyhood there, and was wont to tell how his father, the late Mr. JOHN DICKENS, in the course of a country ramble, pointed out to him as a child the house at Gads-Hill-place, saying: "There, my boy, if you work and mind your book you will perhaps one day live in a house like that." While such thoughts dwelt in after years, and in the course of his many long pedestrian rambles through the lanes and roads of the pleasant Kentish country, Mr. DICKENS came to regard this Gads-Hill house lovingly, and to wish himself its possessor. This seemed an impossibility. The property was so neat that there was no likelihood of its ever coming into the market. And Gads-Hill continued to allured as pecularly as representing a fancy which was pleasant enough as dreamland, but would never be realized. Meanwhile the years rolled on, and Gads-Hill became almost forgotten. Then, a further lapse of time, and Mr. DICKENS felt a strong wish to settle in the country, and determined to let Tavistock House. About this time, and by the strangest coincidences, his intimate friend and close ally, Mr. W. H. WILLS, chanced to sit next to a lady at a London dinner party, who remarked in the course of conversation that a house and grounds had come into her possession of which she wanted to dispose. The reader will guess the rest. The house was in Kent, was not far from Rochester, had this and that distinguishing feature which made it like Gads-Hill and like no other place, and the upshot of Mr. WILLS' dinner table chit-chat with a lady whom he had never met before was that CHARLES DICKENS realized the dream of his youth, and became the possessor of Gads-Hill. It will now be said, as well as the valuable collection of original pictures which Mr. DICKENS gathered together during his life, and many of which are illustrative of his works.

PICTURES AT GADS-HILL.

It will be remembered that on the occasion of the last Academy dinner, Mr. DICKENS alluded in most affecting terms to the intimate friendship it had been his happiness to maintain with Academicians, now no more. Choice works of many of these great artists hang on the walls of Gads-Hill. The house is a museum of genuine lovers of good pictures, admirers of the great writer who has gone, and men who love to have precious associations environing their works of art, will be interested in the catalogue which is about to come forth. The anecdotes concerning DICKENS' personal virtues, and the circumstances under which pictures were gifted to him, so dwell upon us as we write that the chief difficulty is to avoid saying too much. Will a great living painter of English manners, Mr. W. P. FRITH, forgive an allusion to the early days when the success of his admirable picture of "Dolly Varden" led CHARLES DICKENS to call in his studio, and express the warmest thanks for the feeling and appreciation which the artist's handiwork displayed, to give him a commission for other subjects, to be selected from the works of "Boz?" This was before Mr. FRITH had won academical honors, before his name had a world-wide reputation; but DICKENS wanted on canvas, and in tones which should live, the quaint and picturesque of the rheumatic people with whose characteristics England was ringing; for Dolly Varden had proved her limner's capacity in the eyes of the man best qualified to judge. DICKENS' hearty approval of the pictures when painted, his personal introduction of himself to their chastener, and his chatting with the well-known organizer of the "Q" rather like a "G," and the elaborate flourish beneath it, exactly as it is

THE ENVIRONS OF WASHINGTON.

What Visiting Strangers Fail to See—Natural Beauties of the Capital—The Old Soldiers' Home—Its Surroundings and Interior—Life of the Inmates—The Cottages.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 14, 1870.

The floating population of Washington, the strangers who fill our hotels during the Winter, know nothing of the natural beauties of our city. In fact, it is one of the most popular fashions of the day to affect [illegible] to speak only of its bad pavements, its ill-lighted streets, dusty, rough roads, &c., ignoring the broad avenues and lovely squares, the Capitol and West Capitol grounds, the drives along Rock Creek and the Potomac; Arlington, made sacred by the graves of our dead soldiers; the Eastern Branch Lunatic Asylum and the Soldiers' Home. All these beauties are unknown, because the strangers who congregate here in the gay season leave before the Spring is sufficiently advanced to invite to out-door pleasures. But now, in this "lusty month of June," or earlier, in what here is the flowery month of May, Washington will bear comparison with any city I know. In these months the flowering shrubs which ornament our public grounds are in their full glory; the trees are covered with the tender, delicate foliage; the grass is of such an inviting hue and luxuriant texture that one is tempted to pick another cow or a Nolan-monument! The brilliant and enjoyable "May season," so called, expired with Ash Wednesday, and although many attempts have been made to resuscitate it, in the way of private theatricals, tableaux, &c., it awaits quietly the December resurrection. Meantime, while Congress has at last finished with fifteen speeches, and effected the full, other, earnest work of the season, while grave legislators are vieing with each other in the work of taxation and refreshment, the fair sex is relaxing herself with drives, picnics, &c.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

The most fashionable resort is the Soldiers' Home, about three miles from town, accessible by many different roads, all in tolerable order. This institution was built in 1851-52, though for a few years previous to that time soldiers had been cared for in the manner now embodied and carried more perfectly into effect. The idea, as many know, originated with Gen. SCOTT, who had a fund partially under his control, which he had reserved from contributions collected from conquered towns in Mexico; with these contributions he had replenished his army chest, furnished blankets, tobacco, and some other luxuries for his soldiers, and on his return had a surplus of about one hundred and sixty thousand dollars. This, with the consent of Congress, he desired to appropriate to purchasing a site and erecting a home, which should be what its name implies, "A Home for Old Soldiers." Gen. CENCIL, the father-in-law of Gen. ROBERT ANDERSON, then a member of the House of Representatives from Florida, assisted in pushing a bill through Congress which effected this object, and a most desirable site was accordingly purchased from Mr. GEORGE RIGGS, who being about to remove to New-York, had placed his farm and their Summer residence in market. It is situated on the highest ground in the District, near enough to the city to enjoy its advantages, and overlooks Washington and the Potomac River, commanding also a fine view of Arlington and other heights of Virginia, the most extensive obtained from any point, excepting the dome of the Capitol. The grounds are beautifully wooded, partly by Nature and partly by the taste and ingenuity of the landscape gardener who made the original plan for their arrangement. They are laid out in pleasant drives over well-graveled roads, shaded avenues, with now and then a small fish pond, and every possible attraction for either the sentimental or the practical visitor. To the latter, the vegetable garden and fine fields of grain are objects of unfailing admiration.

WITHIN THE INSTITUTION.

The principal edifice, which is "The Home," is built of marble, in a plain substantial style, surmounted by a Mansard roof; is roomy, spacious and well ventilated; admirably arranged for the accommodation of its family of "Old Folks," and is fitted up with every requisite for their comfort, and very many luxuries. The library is filled with a goodly number of standard works, is a light airy room, particularly inviting. Here a one-armed man was reading aloud to his blind companion, from one of COOPER'S inimitable stories, occasionally stopping to exchange comments or make comparisons between this and some of the rough spots in their own lives. The Hospital is under the care of a skillful surgeon, Dr. LAIN, and competent nurses; and is occupied, not only by those who need temporary care and medical treatment, but by many who wish a comfortable lounging place in a quiet room, and an easy chair.

THE INMATES.

There are now on the rolls of the institution the names of 140 inmates, all of whom have gained admission either from twenty years' faithful, honorable service in the army, or from having become disabled in a shorter period. Besides these permanent occupants, temporary shelter and food is given to any soldier who may be in the city on private business. In this way Col. FELIX CORROON, commander of a regiment of New-York volunteers, known as "Les Enfans Perdues," having become too much enfeebled to pursue his occupation as a teacher, was received here as a guest, and carefully nursed until he died, when he was buried among his old comrades in the Old Soldiers' Cemetery. All of these inmates are supported here by their able-bodied comrades, who pay each 12½ cents monthly for this purpose, besides which all fines imposed by Courts-martial, and all unclaimed estates of deceased soldiers, are turned into the fund. The men are allowed to work upon the place, and are paid a reasonable per diem for their labor; but this is optional, and few avail themselves of the privilege, particularly as each one is allowed a small sum monthly for "tobacco money." They have a most contented, happy appearance, as if they had at last reached that soldier's paradise on earth—that place where all his wants are provided for without labor or trouble. As one drives through the grounds one meets them in groups, or solitary, smoking their pipes, fighting over their old battles, as they lie stretched on the green grass, in the sunshine, spinning the yarns they have enjoyed around their camp-fires; or, perhaps, singing a patriotic song or a psalm tune, or vigorously blowing a bugle.

THE COTTAGES NEAR BY.

The smaller houses, or rather cottages, which are for the accommodation of the Governor, Deputy Governor, &c., are of a similar material and style of architecture to the Home. They have fine piazzas in front overlooking pretty grass and flower plats, and gardens in the rear, and become the homes of officers who, no longer able to endure the hardships of frontier life, are entitled, by reason of their wounds and disabilities incurred in battle, to a life of easy service. Col. ARTHUR T. LEE, the present Governor, a gallant officer, was seriously wounded while leading his regiment at Gettysburg, and was in consequence retired, and Gen. ROSECRANCE, the Deputy Governor, lost his right arm; he is still quite a young man and still on the active list. One of the cottages was occupied by Mr. LINCOLN for several Summers, and by some former Presidents, but neither Gen. GRANT nor Mr. JOHNSON has availed himself of this lovely Summer residence. The cottage formerly occupied by Mr. STANTON is situated at some distance from the others, on a prettily wooded knoll, and although a low, simple frame house, adds much to the picturesqueness of the landscape. Some other cottages are to be erected for the various officers in and around the institution. A gardener's house, a small oriental cottage, is now going up, and the site has also been selected for a chapel, which will probably be completed this Summer. This has long been a great necessity, as the Library is the only room where services can be held, and besides being too small to accommodate even those who wish to attend, has been extremely inconvenient, as chairs, benches and other furniture must be moved and removed every week. With so attractive a chapel to invite them, we hope to induce many to attend regularly the services which will be held in it, who now feel no inclination to crowd into the small room devoted to that purpose. The products of the grounds, fine fruits, vegetables and milk, contribute greatly to the comforts and health of the soldiers, who eat, drink, and are generally merry without care or expense.

THE OFFICERS.

The institution, its funds and improvements, are under the charge of a Board of Commissioners, the Commissary-General, Surgeon-General and Adjutant-General of the United States Army, ex-officio. The law requires that a personal inspection and examination shall be made by them at least once a month, but so deeply are the present Board interested in the work of making and keeping their veterans happy and comfortable, in their declining years, that they give a strict supervision to all improvements made on the place, one or three, at least, visiting it daily. All expenditures are made under their control and subject to their personal approval. Its notoriety for the purpose of making a pleasant resort for our citizens that the grounds are thrown open to the public, but for the mutual benefit of citizens and old soldiers. Many of the latter are unable to get further from their beds than the piazza, and an occasional night of the gay world amused and entertains them. I am sorry to learn that the privilege of driving through the place has been abused by persons who cannot resist the pleasure of a race over the smooth roads, that it has been and still is a matter of discussion, whether it is safe to allow indiscriminate admittance, in search of some very narrow escapes have already occurred.

Adjoining the Old Soldiers' Home is the neat, well-cultivated farm of Mr. OBERCHAIN, "Hazelwood," on which was situated one of our largest hospitals during the war, which adds greatly to the beauty and interest of the place I have attempted to describe.

Revolution in Entre Rios—Progress of the Revolution in the Mississippi Republic—Telegraph Line Across the Andes—Opening of the Central Argentine Railroad—Invasion of Indians.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BUENOS AYRES, Monday, May 16, 1870.

Of all Republics, those of the La Plata seem about the most unfortunate. No sooner have we settled down in peace after the Paraguayan struggle than the Province of Entre Rios, the one up till now remarkable for peace, order, and prosperity, is thrown into a state of disorder and rebellion by a band of assassins, which, having murdered Gen. URQUIZA, sets to work to nominate its head Governor of the Province. LOPEZ JORDAN, the instigator of this cowardly assassination, having completed his bloody work, coolly sets the National Government at defiance by having himself elected in URQUIZA'S stead. At first Entre Rios appeared to be in favor, but one by one nearly all the chief men of the Province have by this time declared for the Government, which has now, counting national and provincial troops, a force in the field of about eight thousand men, JORDAN being at the head of a force numbering not over three thousand. The latter's troops are mostly cavalry, which will prove of little use unless for retreating; but last accounts state he is converting those into infantry, which, if true, will make his cause almost hopeless, since such hastily-organized infantry will do little when opposed to veteran troops of the Paraguayan war. Up to date no serious encounter has taken place between the opposing forces. One or two slight skirmishes are reported between the rebels and small bodies of loyal Entre Rianos, in which the latter appear to have been worsted; yet, as in every case the loyal forces were outnumbered, being nothing more than advanced guards of the army now stationed at Gualeguaychu, much importance may not be given to such reverses. Gen. MITRE has given what most people consider undue importance to the rebellion, by forbidding all army correspondence from the seat of war. This is a measure not once resorted to during the Paraguayan campaign, and its only effect here will be to create an uneasy feeling, by giving rise to unfounded reports. All the neighboring Provinces have cheerfully supplied troops in order to suppress the rebellion—a fact which proves their loyalty to the Government, regarding which most felt inclined to doubt. This unlooked-for result has somewhat confounded JORDAN, who, on raising the standard of revolt, expected all the Federal leaders would rally to his support. Results having proved the reverse, leave him all alone; and though several weeks may elapse before his forces are dispersed, there is every reason to hope the rebellion will be quelled without much bloodshed.

The Oriental Republic is still revolutionized. What its Government does is something we, this side of the water, do not quite understand. ARAZENO appears to be left unmolested by the national forces; he has about 1,000 men under his command, and, yet, though the strength of the Government is far greater, both parties seem afraid to make any serious move. There appears every probability that a connection exists between this revolution and the rebellion in Entre Rios, both being sustained by chiefs of the Federal party. One evil result of the Entre Riano war, if it may thus be called, is the withdrawing of large bodies of national troops from the frontiers, which leaves the way open for Indian invasion. Already have these troublesome neighbors discovered this fact in the districts of Azul, Tapalque and Tres Arroyos, where the unfortunate settlers have been deprived of horses, cattle and all other movable valuables.

NEW TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATIONS.

Probably before the end of 1871 Buenos Ayres will be in communication with Valparaiso. A company, "The Transandine Telegraph Company," has been started, to construct a line across the Andes. The line must be completed as far as Mendoza by the end of 1870. Already several vessels, with materials, &c., are on their way out, and several hundred Chinese coolies are expected by way of Valparaiso. No doubt in a few years this line will connect with California, thus placing the greater part of the world in communication.

At last the Central Argentine Railroad is finished. It runs from Rosario to Cordova. The line is to be opened on the 25th inst. Cordova is in full business, preparing for the International Exhibition, which will bring in a golden harvest to the Central Argentine.

PARAGUAY.

Paraguay is going on in the same way as ever. Some excitement is just now being felt at Asuncion in consequence of the approaching election for President. PARANHOS has gone up again, though his mission is a secret. BRIOVA, one of the "Triumvirate," who went down to this city some months back to negotiate a loan, (in which he failed completely,) has sent in his resignation, having been offended, no doubt, at the bad result of his mission.

Rear-Admiral JOSEPH LANMAN, in command of the U. S. Pacific squadron in these waters, arrived in the Wyoming at Buenos Ayres on the 12th inst. The saluting which began at sunrise next morning made every one think some grand news was down from Entre Rios. Admiral LANMAN is accompanied by several officers of his flagship Lancaster, and intends staying here a few days.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Episcopal Methodists are about building a new church. When completed the building will be as pretty and tasteful an edifice as is offered by this city. The need has long been felt. It is hoped a year or eighteen months will see a completion of the work. ....News has the want of a line of steamers to connect with our line at Rio been more felt than at present; everyone is certain such an enterprise would pay. Now that the French regular mail has disconnected, all the American commerce has to travel via France or England. ....Trade in general is good, and prospects of a remunerative market for produce appear very favorable. Camps are in good condition for pasturage.

FICKTURN.

Rather Mysterious on Temperance.

The following letter has been received from Father HYACINTHE, in reply to one informing him that he had been elected an honorary member of the French Temperance Society, at Syracuse:

To Dr. J. N. Cadieus, Corresponding Secretary of the French Temperance and Educational Society, Syracuse, N. Y.

SIR MONSIEUR: I am deeply sensible of the honor done by Le Société Française de Tempérance et d'Education de Syracuse, in making me an honorary member, and although on voyage, I hasten to send you my acceptance and my thanks.

The same cloud, the same languor, the same spleen, haste me more intimately to you, across that ocean which I have traversed to visit the great Cosmopolitan Republic. How proud, how happy I am of every [illegible] honest and generous effort made to [illegible] proportions in the common work of civilization and Christian [illegible] that now [illegible]

Temperance is substituting for the enjoyments of drunkenness, [illegible] the enjoyments of the mind, the heart and the soul which elevate man, and of the [illegible] intellectual features, in matter of education, and [illegible] education was widely, nay, universally diffused, it would have the power to create a new humanity, and almost as superior to the present humanity as the latter is to barbarism.

Please accept, Monsieur, for yourself and the members of your honorable Society, with the expression of my gratitude, that of my sentiments of brotherhood and devotedness.

HYACINTHE LOYSON.

MUNICH, May 16, 1870.

CURRENT NOTES.

Never trust to time—for time will tell.

There were fifty-one new cases of relapsing fever in Philadelphia last week.

The Maine Democrats will nominate their candidate for Governor in Portland today.

Tennessee has reduced its poll tax from $1 50 to fifty cents. It is all appropriated to the schools.

Six religious and charitable societies in Philadelphia get $21,000 by the will of the late ELIZABETH CHESTER CHAUNCEY, of that city.

The Lexington (Va.) Gazette insists that Hon. ALEXANDER H. H. STUART must be the next Conservative candidate for Governor of Virginia.

The Petersburg Index insists that the harvest just secured in Virginia is the most bountiful of all during the past ten years. The crop reached maturity a week earlier than usual.

Col. T. R. BENNETT is the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Third District of North Carolina. His political disabilities have been removed.

The Halifax Reporter says the flag of the New Dominion is pretty, "although some persons are inclined to think it too foreign-looking."

Mrs. SARAH EVANS, of Philadelphia, was so shocked by the news that her nephew had been drowned on Saturday that she was attacked with apoplexy and died.

Vice-President COLFAX has thought it worth while to write to the Detroit Post that he has not written any letter to any paper in regard to any correspondent of the Press in Washington or elsewhere.

In 1860 JEFF. DAVIS, when asked if he would accept the Presidency of the Southern Confederacy, replied that, if he could have his choice he would greatly prefer to be in active service as commander-in-chief of the army, but that he would give himself to the cause in any capacity whatever.

The Frankfort (Ky.) Commonwealth reports that Hon. GEORGE R. MCKEE, of Garrard, Ky., was recently married to his wife, a resident of that city, after an "interregnum" of twenty-five years; and it adds that they are both as happy now as a young wedded couple, united for the first time.

The St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald of Friday last mentions that harvesting Fall wheat has commenced in that vicinity, and adds: "Although the straw is generally short, the grain is exceedingly plump, the head full, and the yield very fair. Spring wheat does not look quite so promising. Corn, oats, rye, barley, and all vegetable products look well, and there is every prospect of an abundant season."

The Quebec Mercury remarks that the arrival of Prince ARTHUR in that city "is an occasion for showing that Canada still retains that respect for British connection which traitor Brunswickers and turn-coat GLADSTONE repudiates;" and it adds that Canada "cannot but appreciate the young Prince, who has shown himself eager to risk his life in the defense of the Canadian frontier." Which means that he hastened from a ball to welcome those horrid Fenians to hospitable graves.

The San Francisco Alta of the 20th inst. says: "The farmers in the Sacramento Valley are now in the midst of their wheat harvest, and those nearer the coast are commencing theirs. There is complaint from Vacaville that the Chili and Australian varieties of wheat have been threshed out considerably by the winds in some fields, with much loss to the owners. The loss is greater on the fallow land than elsewhere, as the grain grows taller. The rise in the price of wheat will more than compensate many of the farmers for the decrease of quantity."

An Indiana poet welcomes June, (rather late in the month, it is true,) to the extent of six or eight verses. We quote the introductory stanza, which is all, probably, the reader would stand without remonstrance:

"Welcome June with her smiles
And her beauties so rare,
With her green-robe of verdure
Her blue skies so fair,
With her little baby-face
Flying through the green mane,
And her lips all red
With the strawberry stains."

Important Police Order.

The Superintendent of Police has issued the following General Order, requiring patrolmen to make reports in certain cases where the public health or convenience seems to require action:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE, OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, NO. 300 MULBERRY-ST. NEW-YORK, June 27, 1870.

To Captains of Police:

At the request of the Mayor, you will cause the patrolmen under your command, every rainy day, to report to me those inequalities of sidewalks which cause a deposit of water in consequence of obstructions at street crossings, in the gutters, and especially in sewer holes in the streets, and report also portions of the street which, if not repaired, are threatening injuries to horses and carriages from the deep wear and tear of pavements, and in every such case, particular to state the liability to injury. The City Inspectors can readily find the locality in question. Further, to report street nuisances in which parties, corporations, or persons in front or opposite have failed to comply with Property Owners' notices. Also, to report by telegraph, or otherwise, any decay of sidewalks in the city, such as dead animals, neglected, or unnecessary obstructions for traffic, or proved injuries to public, street, sewer, or other Municipal City property which may require immediate attention. While the force will continue, by all means in their power, to regulate and control the traffic, and enforce the Corporation ordinances, these ordinances are to be enforced in accordance with the Police authority, and the Patrolmen are to be entrusted by general observance of instructions of the Police, subject to the Superintendent, and under supervision of the Mayor. But it will still be necessary to have the Patrolmen generally informed of any infractions of Corporation ordinances.

JOHN JOURDAN, Superintendent.
GEORGE W. DEKE, Inspector.

Staten Island Improvements.

The last Legislature of New-York passed an act to appoint Commissioners to prepare and submit a plan for roads, avenues, parks and other improvements on Staten Island, and for improvement of the means of communication to and from the island. We learn that a general meeting of the Commissioners named in the act, about seventy in number, has been called for Monday, the 11th of July, at Adams' Hotel, Tompkinsville, for the purpose of proceeding efficiently and practically in the performance of their duties. The call for the meeting is signed by Messrs. L. H. Meyer, Tompkins Westervelt, W. Butler Duncan, C. C. Norvell, Samuel Marsh, Jr., Dwight Townsend, D. R. Norvell and Alvah C. Bradley. The third section of the act appropriates a sum not exceeding $5,000, chargeable upon the County of Richmond, for all necessary expenses and disbursements for plans, maps, &c., incurred by the Board, and subject to the approval of the Board of Supervisors.

Panic Among Lottery Dealers.

The greatest excitement prevails among the lottery dealers throughout the City, in consequence of the numerous arrests which have been and are still being made among their number, for violation of the Revenue law in not paying special tax. Several have already abandoned their business from fear of arrest, and from their inability to comply with the law. The following dealers were taken into custody by Gen. BARNES' Revenue men yesterday, and were bailed in $500 each by Commissioner SHELDON to appear for examination:

David Linde and — Meacham, No. 20 Pine-street; D. Linde and — Anderson, No. 40 Peck-slip; William Craft, No. 39 Whitehall; Robert Spencer and Albert Brown, No. 21 Counties-alley, and A. Eldridge, No. 46 Whitehall-street.

Illegal Voters to be Tried.

The cases of Chas. Link, (colored,) John Kelly, Andrew Morris, Thomas Clark, Edward Martin, Patrick Hogan, Samuel Collins, Frederick Radunzel and Martin Ryan, came before the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday. The prisoners were indicted for illegal voting in this City at the last election. Upon being arraigned, they all pleaded not guilty. Having no counsel to defend them and no money to employ counsel, Mr. WM. F. HOWE was assigned to defend the white voters, and Mr. C. S. SPENCER the colored one, and their trials were set for Tuesday morning of next week. The recent arrest of several who did not appear were [illegible] and warrants issued for their [illegible]

THE TURF.

The Long Branch Meeting—Sketch of Racing Events—Programme of the Meeting.

The programme of the race meeting at Long Branch, which commences on July 26 and continues five days, is now presented to the public in its entirety. The great liberality which characterizes this Association will be appreciated by the public in the knowledge of the fact that the large sum of $21,000 is given in purses and stakes to be run for at this meeting. In view of such unexampled munificence the rival associations at Saratoga and Jerome Park may well look to their laurels, for the race meeting at Long Branch, by the choice of the drive-counting set, bids fair to be the most brilliant that the American turf has ever known. Not only is the amount of money to be contended for publicly unprecedentedly great, but the entries for the various stakes are more numerous and of a higher class than was ever before known. Nearly all those entries comprise all the best runners of note, and we find among them the Louisville Jockey Club of Louisiana, Tennessee, Alabama, Missouri, Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Maryland, as well as of New-York, New-Jersey and the adjacent Dominion of Canada. For the sporting stakes 145 horses are entered, while it is impossible to estimate the number that the rich purses now first announced will attract to the starting-post. Hereafter the fields may be, no difficulty will be experienced in getting them fairly under way, for the new course is eighty feet wide in every part, thus affording ample space to start the largest field of horses ever seen; that is likely to come to the post. The means of access from this City to the course and return will be as numerous as equaled, for special arrangements are being made to effect this object, the floating palaces Jesse Hoyt and Plymouth Rock running at certain stated hours in connection with the lines of railroad, and making the trip each way in an hour and a half. These will, however, be found fully adequate to all the travelling on the occasion.

The first day of the meeting is Saturday, July 30, when the sport commences with a handicap race for a purse of $1,000, weight weights, two miles; the winner taking $700 and the second and third horse each and $150 respectively. Then follows the Long Branch Stakes, for three-year-olds, at a mile, $50 each, play or pay, with $1,500 added by the Association, of which $300 goes to the second horse, and $150 to the third. There are twenty-five entries, of which the most distinguished among which are Glenalvin, Harvester, (unfortunately not likely to face the starter,) Tuscarora, Flora McLean, General York, Barrowstoun, Hobbletoy, Blarney Stone, Jacobson, The Banshee, Corsican and Cocquette. Narrowing down this list, the race seems at present to lay between Blarney Stone, Harvester, Tuscarora, Flora McLean, Cocquette and Corsican, but the result will be in a great measure foreshadowed by the result of the race for the Saratoga Cup. At all events, a more exciting contest may safely be anticipated in the Long Branch Stakes.

On the second day, the Mansion House Stakes, for three-year olds, opens the ball. It is a dash of two miles, carrying 112 pounds, gate money, play or pay, with $1,500, the gift of Mr. GARRETT, LEVIN, the proprietor of the Mansion House, added. There are twenty-five entries for this stake, making its value $2,000, of which $300 goes to the second horse. Among the most likely of the runners entered to furnish the winner are Preakness, Cheverus, Leland, Queen Ann, Maggie E. E. Rowan, and the latter's stable companions, Lexington. The last-named three have already appeared in public, and successfully, but rumor speaks trumpet-tongued of the mettle of the other two divisions. The second race for the Corsican Stakes, all ages, carrying 100 pounds, mile and a half dash, while the third race is for the Americus Club Purse of $2,500, for all ages, the contribution of their popular society from which the purse takes its name. The distance is mile heats, best three in five, and there is a first, second and third money to tempt the starters.

The third day opens with a steeple-chase, for which a purse of $1,500 is given, the winner taking $1,000, and the second and third $300 and $200. Next comes the West End Hotel Stakes, (formerly the Stetson House,) for two-year olds only, to carry 100 pounds, one mile, for each, play or pay, added to a purse of $1,500, the contribution of Messrs. STRANGE, GARDNER & CO., proprietors of that hotel, which has thirty-one youngsters entered for it. Among these are the profiles of Kentucky, Eclipse, Conway, Prophet, Asteroid, Lexington, Jerome Edgar, Lightning, Anderson and others, and if any of these entered will first show in the Saratoga Stakes the month previous, it is useless attempting to pick out the most promising at this early period. The third race is for a purse of $1,500, for all ages, two-mile heats, the winner taking first, and the second and third $600 and $100 respectively. The second day's sport closes with a handicap sweepstakes, for three-year-olds, carrying 100 pounds, mile and a half, $50 each, play or pay, with $1,500 added by the Association, of which $300 goes to the second horse, and $150 to the third. There are twenty-five entries, of which the most distinguished among which are Glenalvin, Harvester, (unfortunately not likely to face the starter,) Tuscarora, Flora McLean, General York, Barrowstoun, Hobbletoy, Blarney Stone, Jacobson, The Banshee, Corsican and Cocquette. Narrowing down this list, the race seems at present to lay between Blarney Stone, Harvester, Tuscarora, Flora McLean, Cocquette and Corsican, but the result will be in a great measure foreshadowed by the result of the race for the Saratoga Cup. At all events, a more exciting contest may safely be anticipated in the Mansion House Stakes.

On the third day, the Mansion House Stakes, for three-year olds, opens the ball. HAN'S whereabouts was written in September last, and was signed F. S. SCHMIPF. This name, it is alleged, was only used as a subterfuge, the real name of the writer being, it is said, one HALSCHUH, a resident of Washington-street, between First and Second streets, Hoboken. HALSCHUH is represented to be a relative of GUTSMAN's, and to have hadited the letter from motives of spite.

The Prospect Park Controversy—Important Action of the Brooklyn Board of Aldermen.

At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen, held yesterday afternoon, a communication from Mr. DE WITT, Corporation Counsel, was received, in which he reviewed at length the entire history of the controversy between the Mayor and the Park Commissioners, and concluded by stating that, in his opinion, the MAYOR should sign Mr. HILTON's bonds, the law being entirely against him. The communication was placed on file, and the following resolutions, upon the same subject, were presented by Aldermen BENNETT, and adopted by the Board:

Whereas, A controversy has arisen between the Brooklyn Park Commissioners and His Honor the Mayor of this City, as head of his Executive Department, as to the propriety of issuing City Bonds, when directed to be issued by an Act of the Legislature, of the 4th of May, 1870, for the improvement of Prospect Park; and

Whereas, A mandamus has been obtained by them, by the Supreme Court compelling the Mayor to issue said Bonds, and the Mayor has appealed from said mandamus to the Court of Appeals, and the Court of Appeals has ordered the Mayor to issue said Bonds, and the Mayor has refused to do so; and

Whereas, The Board is advised by the Corporation Counsel that the Court of Appeals will decide against the Mayor, and that the Court of Appeals, in the case of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York against the Supervisors of the City and County of New-York, decided that the Mayor is the proper officer to issue the bonds of the City, and that the Board of Aldermen have no power to authorize the issue of said bonds, and that the Mayor should sign the bonds; and

Whereas, The Board is advised by the Corporation Counsel that the Court of Appeals will decide that the Mayor is not a ministerial officer, but a judicial officer, and that a mandamus will not lie against him, and that the Court of Appeals will decide that the Mayor is the proper officer to issue the said Bonds, and that the Board of Aldermen have no power to authorize the issue of said bonds; and

Whereas, The Board is advised by the Corporation Counsel that the Court of Appeals will decide that the said Park Commissioners have no authority to issue said bonds, and that the Mayor should not issue said bonds; and

Whereas, His Honor the Mayor is doubtful as to his power to sign a warrant to draw said sum from the City Treasury to be paid to the Brooklyn Park Commissioners, without the direction of the Common Council, therefore

Resolved, That the said sum of $10,000 be paid out of the City Treasury to the said Brooklyn Park Commissioners, and that the Mayor, Comptroller and City Clerk be and they are hereby authorized and directed to sign a warrant therefor.

The Sunday Liquor Traffic to be Stopped.

At a meeting of the Board of Police yesterday, President BOSWORTH offered the following, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Superintendent be and he is hereby instructed to notify the Captains of the Precincts to see to it that the laws and special ordinances of these premises of ill which require that all general places be closed between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning, and that no intoxicating liquors be sold on Sunday, must be effectually enforced, and that the Captains of the Precincts will be held responsible for any neglect or inefficiency in executing this order.

MONDAY, June 27—P. M.

In the Gold market there was a partial show of firmness in the early transactions of the day at 111¼ ₱ cent, as against 111¼ at the close on Saturday; but before 3 o'clock the advance was lost, and the Gold Room relapsed into a dull feeling. The Foreign Exchanges took pretty much the same course. Nearly all the prominent drawers opened firm at 109½ ₱ cent, for 60 days, London, and 110¼ ₱ cent, short sight, but there was no very decided spirit in the demand and the market left off quiet. It would seem reasonable to be that very considerable First of July dividend collections for foreign accounts should create an extra demand for Bills, and it may be that such demand will show itself before the close of the week. The Dividend Payments at the Treasury will begin to-morrow. The other Dividends on Friday next, July 1.

Money already very easy and cheap, will be still more abundant after these dividends payments, but this prospect thus far to stimulate speculation in Gold or Exchange, or the Public Funds, or in the Railway Stocks. On the contrary, the last named are especially depressed today, and the market has a decidedly Bearish appearance; the decline in prices since Saturday being 1@2 ₱ cent. on most of the New-York and Western list. The mixture of last week, and the comments in regard to the action of Congress, look conclusive to the adverse turn of the market, and the indications at the close of the day were in the direction of a dull time throughout the week. After the Fourth of July, which will of course be kept as a close Holiday, still the doubt intensifies with Saturday the Second, we may reasonably look for more business.

By an order made in the House of Representatives, this forenoon, the Funding Bill (Four ₱ cents) will come up to-morrow in place of Wednesday. Debate will be limited to three hours speeches, and it is not improbable that an amendment will be moved to the Bill by the Chairman of the Ways and Means in regard to banking on the new Stock, if the $68,000,000 Currency Bill, now in Conference, should fail between the two Houses.

In the Afternoon the Gold market sold down to 110¾ ₱ cent, and the United States 5-20s of 1867 to 112¼ ₱ cent, including the July coupon. Later the quotations were 111 and 112 ₱ cent, respectively. The Railways were generally dull and prices weak, closing about as follows, as compared with Saturday Afternoon:

The Philadelphia Ledger says of the Coal Trade:

"The anthracite coal trade is in almost precisely the same condition as at the date of our last weekly report. Efforts have been making, we are informed, on the Schuylkill region, to bring about a resumption of work there, but far as we know, without any marked effect. The parties there are as widely variant as ever, while the activity in the other various keeps the supply of coal equal to the current demand. The Schuylkill Canal reports a small tonnage for last week. The Lehigh region has been much cut down, of all kinds, for the week ending the 2d inst., as our tonnage shows, and the total shipment, from the previous week, and for the fiscal year, compares as follows:

	1869-70.	1868-9.
Week	1,000 tons	1,000 tons
Year	1,000 tons	1,000 tons

The total product of all the anthracite coal fields last year is 15,000,000 tons, and bituminous coal regions for the week, as far as reported by mail, amount yesterday, tons, the previous week—a decrease of 2,000 tons—and for the fiscal year 2,000,000 tons, a increase of 1,100,000 tons, in the above dates last year, being an increase of 1,100,000 tons. In the above table, the tonnage of the anthracite last week there is included 20,000 tons of slack, or 15,000 tons of anthracite, and 5,000 tons of bituminous. Our tonnage report for the week shows the Vienna nuggets to rise 2 ₱ cent during the last week. A new vein has been started at Frankfort under the title of the German-American Bank, and among the promoters are many good names. They might do a profitable business, it is remarked. But the Schuylkill Coal Company, in which the Vienna nuggets could be taken, indeed, as long as Judges are appointed by universal suffrage and not by competent authorities, who could ascertain the characters of persons in whom such functions should be vested. Unless State Bonds are in demand for investment, while there is scarcely any floating supply on the market."

The same paper says:

"News has been received by telegraph that the Aurora, Capt. HARRIOTT, which sailed from Boston on the 11th last, with a large cargo of cotton, for Liverpool, was destroyed by fire on the 9th. Following this, very severe. The loss is likely to be heavy, at least $100,000 to $150,000."

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD OF IOWA, 225 miles in length, now nearly completed, 12,000 tons of iron being laid this season.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

We believe that no class of investments has been found so uniformly safe and profitable as First Mortgages on completed roads.

Of 225 companies operating 36,000 miles of railroad in the Northern and Western States, in which there is a bonded debt of $700,000,000, we know of but two that do not pay their interest promptly.

Several railroads were built before the country around them was sufficiently settled to give them adequate business, which for a short time failed to pay their interest; but the building of the roads soon brought a population that made them profitable, when the payment of interest was resumed, and the Bonds proved perfectly good.

SECURITY.

In selecting new railroad bonds for purchase the investor should ask first: Is the road needed? Second: Is the country it is to run through productive? Third: Are its connections important? Fourth: Are its associations with other companies such as to give it strength? Fifth, and more than all: Is the Company engaged in its construction strong enough to carry it through? If all these questions can be answered in the affirmative, there can be no doubt about the security of a first mortgage to the amount of $16,000 per mile. The average price at which good, reliable 7 per cent. gold bonds can be bought of such a road to-day, and at this rate they pay about one-third more interest than the bonds of the old roads.

We believe that the CENTRAL RAILROAD OF IOWA fulfills all the conditions for a good Bond that we have named above.

It is the only link wanting to connect the two great Cities of St. Louis and St. Paul.

It runs through the garden of Iowa, where all the completed railroads have proved very profitable.

It is built in the interest and partly with the money of the same powerful parties who are building a great system of roads that center at St. Paul, which will give it a large traffic.

Three thousand men are at work on the road, and to complete this year at all events.

Twelve thousand tons of iron are going forward, and the track is being laid at the rate of nearly a mile a day.

The Company is made up of bankers, leading railroad capitalists and others, who put a large amount of their own money into the common stock of the road, and who have credit for prudence in making their investments.

TRUST.

One thousand dollars invested in Government Sixes—say '67s (which may be paid off in two or three years)—at 15 per cent. premium, yield per annum 6 ₱ cent over 5 per cent. income. One thousand dollars invested in Government Fives yields less than 4½ per cent. income, while the same amount, invested in a 7 ₱ cent. railroad bond at 90, yields 7¾ per cent., all in gold. There is thus no doubt of the profit of selling Government while the premium is still large, and buying first-class railroad bonds. It is only a question of security. But if the road is entirely finished, and paying dividends on its stock, none of its bonds can be bought that will yield 7¾ per cent. in gold per annum. The Railroad Journal of May 28 gives the following as the market price of the bonds of some of the leading railroads:

Pennsylvania Railroad currency 6s	102¾
New-York and New-Haven currency 6s	90
Hartford and New-Haven currency 6s	90
Cleveland and Pittsburgh sterling 7s	105
London and Amboy currency 6s	110
Lehigh Valley currency 6s	90

It will be seen that these mortgages now paid an average of about 8 per cent. in gold; and as the Government tax of 5 per cent. is contested by the several companies, the net income is about one-third of one per cent. less.

SALES OF BONDS.

About one-half of the bonds of the Central Railroad of Iowa have already been sold.

As we have thoroughly examined into their merits, and have no doubt of their security, we take pleasure in recommending them to our customers and the public. They continue for sale at the original price of 90 and accrued interest in currency.

We believe there will be no more favorable time to sell United States bonds and buy railroad bonds than the present.

CONGRESS.

The Senate met at 3 o'clock, yesterday, and held an evening session. The Tax bill came up early in the day as unfinished business. Mr. SHERMAN stated that the Finance Committee had agreed to let all the income taxes go, and retain the tax on sugar as it is now, and also the tax on gross receipts. After debate, the income-tax sections were stricken out without a division. A new section, continuing the tax on corporations and salaries during this year, was agreed to, and various others, carrying out the recommendations of the Finance Committee, including one authorizing the consolidation of collection districts. Several amendments were agreed to to the tariff sections. After a long discussion the Senate Committee's amendment striking out the paragraph in the House bill classifying the tax on sugars was rejected—yeas 28 and nays 30. At 4 o'clock the House resolution on the death of Representative HEATON was received, and after the customary eulogies a recess at 4¾ was taken until evening. The evening session was devoted to the consideration of the Texas Pacific Railroad bill, mainly.

In the House, bills were introduced for the establishment of a Department of Revenue; to punish the collection of illegal taxes on passengers; to distribute pro rata moneys paid or to be paid by Venezuela for claims of United States citizens, under the award of the mixed Commission, under the treaty of April 25, 1866, and to authorize the issue of four per cent. bonds exchangeable for and convertible into legal-tender notes at par. A resolution directing the Ways and Means Committee to report forthwith a bill reducing the duties on all classes of salt fifty per cent., was adopted by a vote of 108 yeas to 48 nays. The Funding bill was made the special order for today. The Senate amendments to the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill were non-concurred in, and a Conference Committee was appointed. A resolution requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to communicate the results of the investigation into the cartage system of the Custom-house in this City, was agreed to. Leave was asked to introduce a bill to punish crimes and frauds at certain elections, by Mr. DAVIS, of New-York, but Mr. BROOKS objected, remarking that if it was desired to fix the election of the New-York Legislature, final adjournment had better be postponed to November. At 1¼ o'clock the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Sundry Civil Expense bill, and managed to dispose of all but six pages. Mr. GARFIELD announced that he would call up the Currency bill for action today; and then, at 5½ o'clock, the House adjourned.

THOMAS SHERIDAN, indicted for the murder of his wife in September last, was arraigned before Judge BARNARD, of the Oyer and Terminer, for trial, yesterday, but for lack of jurors, the case was postponed to Thursday next.

A Less Annual.

There would be an obvious necessity for a careful reconsideration of the Tax and Tariff bill, as a result of the Senate's determination not to renew the income tax, if the revenue to be thence derived represented the difference between a surplus and a deficiency in the national exchequer. If receipts from income were essential to the maintenance of the public credit, a resolution to dispense with those receipts would necessarily be followed by the adoption of some substitute. The Senate and its Finance Committee might then be excused for their apparent unwillingness to increase the total of reduction sanctioned by the House. We could then listen with patience to a discussion on the relative advantages to be derived from the retention of special taxes or of the customs' duties, which the House, at Mr. SCHENCK'S instance, suddenly reduced.

But any discussion on the subject is needless. The aggregate amount of tax reduction effected by the bill as it left the House would not exceed seventy millions,—including the saving consequent upon the lowering of the income tax rate from five to three per cent., and the doubling of the exemption. The yield of the income tax as thus modified would probably not exceed fifteen millions. Inasmuch, however, as the gross surplus on the present basis of taxation would not be less than a hundred millions, it is plain that the amount covered by the Tax bill, with the tariff clauses retained, and with all the additional reductions which the Senate has sanctioned, or is likely to sanction, would be considerably less than the sum available for relief. Let the income tax drop, according to the decision of the Senate; let the further changes in internal taxation which Mr. SHERMAN has contemplated be carried into effect;—the total reduction of taxes will, after all, not exceed ninety millions. The Treasury may even then calculate upon its ability to satisfy the requirements of the Sinking Fund law, and still have a few spare millions at the end of the fiscal year.

The hesitating, timid manner in which Congress handles the subject of taxation would be intelligible and proper in the presence of either of two contingencies. If it were not possible to reduce largely the revenues of the Government without impairing its credit and efficiency, that fact would be conclusive against reduction. Or if the prevalence of industrial and commercial prosperity, the contentment and ease of the people, and the existence of a sentiment favorable to the premature payment of the bonded debt seemed to make the reduction of taxes an unpopular policy, the Republican majority might find in these circumstances an apology for inaction. Both of these hypotheses are, however, at variance with reality. The credit and efficiency of the Government will be unimpaired, though the reduction of taxes reach ninety or a hundred millions. And public opinion so unmistakably points to a policy of relief that the enactment of a Tax and Tariff bill, reducing the taxes not less than ninety millions, would do more for the Republican Party in the Fall campaign than aught else that can be attempted. This acquisition of popular strength, as a consequence of the relief which the abolition or reduction of taxes will afford, will not proceed from any capricious or unreasonable aversion to fiscal burdens. It will be the expression of gratitude for succor sadly wanted by every branch of trade and industry,—the legitimate product of a policy anxiously hoped for by the country as a means of benefiting its depressed and struggling interests.

The Congressional Republican Committee, it is rumored, is closely studying the political field in anticipation of an arduous canvass this Fall. The Democratic Senators and Representatives have promulgated their views upon the subject, and by and by, no doubt, the Republican Senators and Representatives will give us theirs. To the latter gentlemen we submit that they can play no card so sure to win as that which Congress, by bold and sweeping action in regard to taxes, may place in their hands. There are many topics which suggest to them nicely-rounded periods. They have at their command patriotic appeals which will never go unanswered. But the thing which will tell most effectively for the Congressional majority, and which will best prove the Republican appreciation of the wants and wishes of the people, will be the reduction of taxation, during the present session, to an amount not less than ninety millions. Give relief now, to that extent, and the Republican strength in the canvass will be augmented immensely.

It is a relief, too, from which even the Government will be a gainer. Lift ninety millions off the shoulders of the people, and their industrial and commercial efforts will acquire an elasticity which will increase all productive forces and bring back a degree of prosperity which no other legislation can so effectually promote. The opportunity is one which the majority at Washington cannot afford to neglect. Instead of squabbling about details, let them try the opposite course, and make the Tax and Tariff bill a means of reducing taxes to the largest possible extent.

Railway Annoyances.

Railway traveling of late years has been improved by the addition of many features which go far to lessen its discomfort. A journey of thousands of miles by rail has become the merest bagatelle, and the trip from New-York to San Francisco is matter of less preparation and fatigue than the trip formerly from New-York to Albany or Boston. The sleeping-cars, especially, in use on all first-class roads, are in most respects models of elegance and convenience, and one almost realizes by their means the wonders of the Arabian Nights, on going to sleep in one city, and waking in the morning at another a hundred miles away.

Yet, though a great deal has been achieved in this direction, much still remains to be done. Dust and cinders are the railway traveler's great pests, and until some system of ventilation is devised which will exclude these while admitting the air, water routes, wherever practicable, will be preferred, in Summer at least. Now, considering the annoyance, not to say positive misery, caused by these nuisances, it seems worth while to make a strong effort to abolish them. A cinder lodging in the eye will cause an amount of distress, if not of permanent injury, hardly conceivable without the undesirable experience. Why do not our inventors turn their attention to this subject? We have gas-consuming stoves, why not cinder and smoke-consuming locomotives? A water-car, with copious sprinklers, attached to the tender, to lay the dust along the way, must perhaps be reserved for the age of perfection. But it seems not impossible to devise some plan of ventilation whereby the air, before passing into the car, shall be purified, and so relieved of its disagreeable accompaniments. The present discomfort is at any rate serious enough to make the question of relief worthy of close investigation. The railway traveler is now almost choked by cinders and dust.

In the matter of speed, too, we are sadly behindhand. Forty miles an hour is a maximum rate, even on our best roads, and twenty-five the average. Compared with the rates of foreign express trains, this is ridiculously slow. Of course, allowance is to be made for the more broken character of our country, and the consequent excess of curves in our roads, but this is not enough to account for the great disparity. Our railroad men are, however, beginning to realize their backwardness in this respect, and to revise their time-tables. If, as is promised, we have an express to Chicago in twenty-four hours, which will be at the rate of nearly fifty miles an hour, and if this speed can be achieved with entire safety, we shall doubtless see the dawn of a new era in American railway travel. But much greater care will have to be exercised in looking after the road and the cars than is common at present. In regard to accuracy and punctuality, also, most of our roads might be improved. A train which verifies its time-table is almost a phenomenon. This uncertainty, besides its danger, is a source of great annoyance, and even of loss to business men. It might be greatly if not entirely obviated by adopting the plan prevalent abroad—the only one which insures against collision—of running by telegraph as well as time-tables, and of permitting no train to leave one station until communication has been had with the next, and the track ascertained to be clear.

Railway companies would also consult their own interests, no less than the comfort of their passengers, by giving some attention to the wayside eating-stations. What these are at present no traveler needs to be told. What they should and might be, a trip on a French or Russian road will show. In Russia, particularly, the refreshment stations are patterns of cleanliness and comfort. The traveler at each is served with a savory meal, and has ample time to eat it. If our companies would take this matter into their own hands, and attend to it in a liberal spirit, instead of leaving it to their conductors, or to other irresponsible parties, as a means of exorbitant profit, a reform much needed could readily be established.

There are many similar petty vexations, to which the railway traveler in America is exposed, without sufficient justification. Of these, lack of drinking water is one of the most frequent and inexcusable. Another, is such deplorable want of system as that whereby the traveler is turned out of his sleeping-car at Ogdensburg, to cross the St. Lawrence, at 3 o'clock in the morning, on a ferry-boat which could readily take over the car, as is is done at Camden and at Havre de Grace. Railway traveling is rapidly being reduced to a science, and mistakes of this sort are grown far becoming less justifiable. The time is not very distant when the success or failure of a road may turn on just such minor matters as these.

Love and Murder.

BUCKLE pointed out, not for the first time, that there are few things more interesting to the student of morbid psychology, than the certainty with which unusual phases of crime repeat themselves, until, as the phrase is, they merge into an epidemic. There seems to be a fascination in unique devices of wickedness, which appeals strongly to the imitative faculty in human nature. From the day when some ingenious Frenchman discovered the immense adaptability of the Column on the Place Vendôme for suicidal purposes, it is only with great difficulty and watchfulness, we are told, that all self-immolating Paris can be restrained from leaping into eternity from its summit. The Probst butchery with us was quickly followed by the Tragesser horror in France and the Marshall massacre in England, the circumstances in each case being similar, and a proportion of the victims in each being young persons. It is hardly to be doubted that any novel method of suicide or murder—such as blowing one's self up with a torpedo, taken internally, or burning one's children at the stake—would speedily attract numerous students and practitioners.

The popular diversion of our dangerous classes at present, appears to be the murder of the young women to whom they have paid their addresses. There is a fine air of "matrimony made easy" in the promptness with which, in such cases, death avenges disappointment. A proposal is rapidly getting to be a practical demand of "Your hand or your life." If Dulcinea says "yes," Corydon is satisfied, but, if she ventures to say "no," Corydon whips out his knife or pistol, and calmly sacrifices his mistress on the altar of mortified vanity. This was the explanation first given of the Marshall murders. The latest reported case with us, which occurred in Missouri, presents one feature of unusual and dramatic interest. The assassin, quite in the spirit of the Mexican bandit, who piously invokes the aid of Heaven on his projected foray, prepared himself by going to church on the morning of the Sunday he had chosen for his crime. During the service his impatience overcame his caution, and in full view of the congregation he began to examine the butcher-knife which he had brought with him, to test its temper, to gloat over it in anticipation of the bloody work it was soon to perform. In the afternoon, this model lover called on the object of his devotion, solicited and obtained a few minutes' private conversation, and with great decision availed himself of that opportunity to stab her to the heart. He does not appear to have attempted suicide, being made apparently of that sterner stuff which believes that while there is life, and the right of trial by an intelligent jury, there is hope.

Readers who have memories will easily recall a dozen similar instances which have occurred in this vicinity within a very short period. There is a ray of comfort in the comparative certainty of punishment, for the only way of stopping the epidemic is to bring the culprits to judgment. It would be far less mischievous to abolish capital punishment altogether, than to pretend to keep it in existence, and at the same time cause it to be understood that the last penalty will never be inflicted. The execution of JACK REYNOLDS kept down the tendency to murder for a time, but other examples of the same sort may perhaps be needed before the ruffians in our midst are made to understand that the law is not a thing to be laughed at.

Overcrowding.

The evil of evils in the City of New-York, whether in a moral or sanitary point of view, is the overcrowding of population in tenement-houses. The sanitary authorities inform us that "seventy-five per cent. of the synonymous or fermenting diseases" of the City,—such as scarlet fever, dysentery, diphtheria and the like—take their origin in these crowded dens, and from them they are wafted to every quarter of the town. Without the influence of these houses, New-York would be the healthiest City in the civilized world, owing to its excellent position between two water-fronts, and the fresh air blowing through it continually.

The terrible mortality of children which swells our death rate so much, arises in a large measure from the natural effects of the massing of human beings in these great caravansaries. The experience in the "closes" of Edinburgh shows that the upper stories of very lofty tenement-houses are even more unhealthy than the lower, owing to the quantity of effluvia which is carried up from so many human beings below. Where hundreds of persons are thus packed in a square box, one above another, the healthful elements of the atmosphere about are more rapidly consumed, and disease and degeneration soon appear. Two of our wards, it must be remembered, the Seventeenth and Eleventh, have the evil reputation of inclosing more human beings to the square yard, than any other districts in the worst quarters of London, Glasgow, or the most densely-crowded cities of the Old World.

But when we regard these "dens" in a moral point of view the evils they scatter are even more terrible. Whatever may be thought of the possibilities of human nature in struggling against misfortune or temptation, no reasonable person can expect purity in girls or honesty in boys when they are crowded, young and old, male and female, of various families and parentage, in one narrow tenement-room. Indeed, were an angel to begin its mortal existence with such surroundings, and under such temptations, we could only look forward to crime, indulgence and misery as the fitting close. We need not wonder that more than "seventy-five per cent." of the worst diseases of the City spring from tenement-houses. Here robbery and murder lurk; here impurity is born and bred; in these dark dens, drunkenness and burglary and prostitute are educated, and from them come forth the swarms of criminal children which infest the City.

The great question for all practical reformers, and all who would improve the moral and physical condition of the masses of New-York, is, "How can overcrowding be checked?" This problem for philanthropists, reformers or the religious bodies, should take precedence of all other practical questions in regard to the moral improvement of this City. We can see many alleviations of the present evil as possible, but in only one direction can we behold an absolute cure.

Thus the establishment of model lodging-houses, which pay a fair profit, combining with it a strict sanitary code bearing on tenement-houses, could produce a great and beneficial reform. The new houses would, as a matter both of competition and conscience, soon be built on better sanitary principles, and the old could be reformed by force of law. Strict rules could be made and carried out, as to the means of ventilation, and the number of inhabitants or lodgers permitted to a scale of cubic feet. Gradually important improvements could be introduced, and the tenement-houses be vastly changed.

By a similar process the lodging-houses in London for single men, have been immensely improved, and the death-rate lessened in many quarters, both of that city and others. But in New-York, the great difficulty is that we have but little space, and a continually increasing population. Bad government, too, is a fact, not to be put aside in our calculations. We have now, and probably shall have for many generations, an exceedingly corrupt and expensive administration of this City. This corruption is paid for by taxation, and taxes appear in rents. Room is naturally dear and it is made dearer by bad government. This fact is the great fixed element of the problem, and it is not likely to change during the lifetime of any of our readers. While this is so, population must crowd in narrow spaces and be packed in large houses. The only remedy we can look forward to is that which relieves London or Philadelphia or many other large cities,—the expansion of space by cheaper and easier communications. If in New-York an under-ground railroad were laid between Canal-street and Westchester County, with cheap working-men's trains at an early hour in the morning and at sunset in the evening, bringing Harlem River within, say, forty minutes of the factories and business quarters of the City, it would be like adding a large, cheap space to our poorer wards. A laborer could have his own cottage and garden in Westchester for what he pays now for an attic in a tenement-house. Or he could occupy there part of a small house, at a lower rent than he now pays, and have fresh air and fitter associations for his children. Were such a line of communication carefully arranged, overcrowding in the poor wards would receive an immediate check.

Rents would go down, and fewer people could afford to live in a room. Very many—especially the German operatives—would prefer the country. The City ground would at once become larger for the working class. Our great evil would receive its first serious blow. Who will hasten cheap and rapid communication between the country and the poorer wards?

Associative Christianity.

We present in another column an outline of the proceedings of five hundred delegates from the Young Men's Christian Associations of the Union and of Canada, who last week were assembled at Indianapolis. In an international Convention like this, many points of general interest necessarily come up in the course of discussion. Among those to which reference will be found in the communication from our correspondent, is the question of reaching the young men who arrive, as strangers, in our large cities. To bring such within the influence of good companionship and of rational enjoyment is, unquestionably, one of the most important functions of such associations. The ordinary modes of living in our large cities are not usually such as to give a stranger a relish for domesticity. A young man, possessing character and habits only partially formed, is not, under existing social usages, likely to come naturally under the best influences for molding his life. The least exclusive kind of society is that which has least of anything good to preserve, and is therefore under no concern about the character of those who seek admission into it.

There is a feeling of individual independence strongly developed in young men that causes them to reject any necessity for graving admission into circles which might probably be quite disposed to make them welcome. A removal into the new life of a great city means, therefore, with very many, a gravitating to a much lower sphere of companionship and habits than they have been accustomed to occupy, and thus do many promising lives become stunted and blasted while in the most critical stage of their development.

To prevent such a deterioration, by extending the right hand of brotherhood to the stranger and the friendless, ought to form one of the most important functions of Christian associations. One great cause of the decay of many of them—a subject which was also discussed at the Convention—has been their want of appreciation of this powerful means of strengthening their ranks and preserving their vitality. The members of such bodies too often forget that every man must be an active worker in the objects of the association. To expect the real work to be done by the office-bearers is an eminently total mistake. On that principle they may deserve the name of religious clubs, but can have no title to that of Christian associations. In Chicago they have evidently worked the reception of strangers in a very sensible and systematic way. In New-York the same cordial welcome, at least, is extended, and if the same diligent search is not made, it is probably because the spontaneous supply is as abundant as can be easily dealt with. The variety of provision which is made in the rooms of the Association of this City for the relaxation and development of both body and mind is, we believe, unequaled on this continent.

The Currency Bill.

The prospect of inflation which the passage by the House of Mr. GARFIELD'S Currency bill opened to the eyes of speculators, was instantly followed by an upward heave in the gold market. The gamblers would have turned their advantage to account but for the fact that the Senate has steadily resisted all attempts to renew expansion. The firmness of its purpose in this respect, doubtless, contributes to the depression which yesterday's decline in the premium exemplifies.

The close sympathy that exists between the action of Congress in reference to the Currency bill and the course of the gold speculators in Wall-street, should present Senators to resist every form of compromise favorable to the expansive feature of the measure. Pass it with that feature retained, and the gamblers will forthwith hold high carnival. The chances they have signed for will be within their reach. Gold will go up, and up—none knows whither. On the other hand, expunge the obnoxious feature, and the causes which have forced gold down will continue to operate. The disturbance of values, otherwise inevitable, will be averted. We shall move gradually toward specie payments, instead of being forced in the wrong direction, as would be the case under inflation.

SPOTTED TAIL has returned to his own people only to find his wife dead a day before his arrival, and to bury the white man's presents with the kinsmen whom in his Indian fashion he appears to have deeply loved. Our special dispatch indicates that the Chief suspects the pale faces of having brought about his bereavement. Whether this is the outcome of some superstitious feeling, or the prompting of a suspicion of actual fact, we cannot determine. In either case it is unfortunate that it should be likely to prove the occasion of a fresh outburst of hatred against the conquering race, and should thus neutralize the good feeling which the officers of our Government at Washington took such pains to instill.

The South American Republics have taken a long time to learn the first principles of civilized society. Assassination still continues to be a frequent preliminary to the attainment of either federal or provincial influence. The latest instance is that of Entre Rios, a province of La Plata, where a certain LOPEZ JORDAN, being ambitious of the Governorship, seems to have considered the murder of the existing occupant of that office the most natural way of attaining his object. Supported by a chosen band of cutthroats, he appears to have for a short time successfully defied the National Administration, and by the latest advices he had taken the field against the federal forces at the head of three thousand men. It is somewhat encouraging to find that a pretty general disposition has been shown to put down this desperado, leading us to believe that South American admiration for successful murderers is on the decrease.

The eastward movement of grain by the Erie Canal from the opening to June 20, is nearly two million bushels less than for the corresponding period last year, and nearly three million bushels less than for the same period in 1868. The prospect is that under the stimulus to get to market, caused by the recent advance in prices, and the prospect of a large foreign demand, the trade will be steady through the Summer and Autumn, and that the business of the whole season will compare favorably with that of 1869, in quantity at least. The great railway competition now going on, may divert considerable grain from the Canal, and probably will if it is kept up through the Summer. All these things must be taken into account in estimating the results of the canal policy of 1870.

Summer tourists, who have had a trip to Lake Superior in contemplation, will be glad to learn that the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad, running from Duluth to St. Paul, will be opened on the 1st of August. It was intended to have a grand celebration of that event on the Fourth of July, but owing to unexpected and unavoidable delays, the road could not be completed in time. After the 1st of August, one of the finest Summer trips on the continent will be by steamer from Detroit to Duluth, thence by rail to St. Paul, thence down the Mississippi River to Dunleith, and by rail to Chicago and Detroit, making a circuit of about 1,200 miles. The completion of the road from the head of Lake Superior to St. Paul, will mark an era in the development of that region, not only as regards means of travel, but also as regards traffic.

The remarks of Supervisor DUTCHER, with reference to the internal revenue returns, quoted in our Washington dispatch, speak very eloquently as to the influence which our excessive load of taxation has exercised upon the commerce of the country. The fact of many of our merchant princes reporting comparatively small incomes, and of a large proportion reporting losses instead of profits, proves the necessity, upon which we have so fully insisted, of keeping down the taxes. That our business men have stood so well the revenue drain of the past few years, is indubitable proof of the reliable foundations of our commercial stability. That the elasticity of our trade is beginning to give way under the long-continued pressure, is the most potent of all arguments in favor of tax reduction and revenue reform.

A vacancy caused by death in statesmanship is regarded very much as a vacancy in the line of succession to a throne: "The King is dead—long live the King." It is, therefore, not a matter of surprise that close behind the news of the decease of the Rector of the British Foreign Office comes a rumor of his probable successor. Lord GRANVILLE, who has been thus designated, was born fifteen years later than Lord CLARENDON, and is therefore at an age when public men in England are considered as still young. In 1840 he held a brief appointment as Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. In 1851 an equally brief tenure of the Chief Secretaryship; his other ministerial positions being chiefly minor ones, though his actual influence has always been considerable, and his powers of conciliation and leadership uncontested.

The coal monopoly was voted down by the House, weeks ago. Yesterday the salt monopoly received a heavy blow from the same quarter. In regard to coal, the decision was favorable to the free admission of the foreign article; in regard to salt, it is that the present duty be reduced one-half. But of what avail are these decisions, if the half-heartedness of the Ways and Means Committee, with the help of a slight majority, is to be allowed to prevent reform? Having pronounced in favor of these reforms, by large majorities, the House should invest them with the authority of law, so far as its action is concerned. To decline against monopolies, and then to allow them quietly to retain their advantages, is an absurdity which the majority cannot easily justify.

It is to be hoped that the report which comes from Washington that Congress will not be able to complete its necessary work by the 15th of July, is not well-founded. We are told that the delay will not rest with the House, but with the Senate, and that the latter body will require an extension of time of at least ten days. If the Senate would address their diligently to work, and forego irrelevant speech-making, it might accomplish all that is required of it in the interval between this and the 15th of July. The effect of any further extension of the session would be vexatious to the Republican Party, in view of the fact that the State elections have already begun, and will occur in rapid succession. Delaware and Kentucky hold theirs early in August, Maine, Vermont and California in September, and all the others in October and November. No further time, therefore, is to be lost by our representatives in doing the work upon which to go to the people. Having deliberately laid down a programme, Congress ought, by all means, to conform to it.

Supervisor PRESSLY, of the District of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee, has recently been commissioned by the Internal Revenue Department to investigate the practical working of the system in this State, so far as the tobacco trade is concerned. He has spent several weeks in this City, making investigations, and has just sent his report to the Washington authorities, recommending a uniform tax on all manufactured tobacco. This, he thinks, would not only tend to prevent frauds, but would materially reduce the expenses of collection, besides being decidedly agreeable to the manufacturers, to whom the existing regulations are very annoying.

Were any private individual to be pursued with the virulent detraction and uniform unfairness to which the President has been from time to time subjected by certain of his critics, the perpetrators of such abuse could scarcely fail to meet with the contempt of all impartial men. No sooner is one calumny exposed, than another is forthcoming from some unknown source of most prolific power of reproduction. A thorough explanation will be found elsewhere of the Baez protocol, over which so much innocuous has been wasted. The simple fact is that this document was both conceived and written by the Dominican President, and contained neither the words nor the sentiments of President GRANT, and that when it was presented for his signature he promptly and finally declined. The invention which willfully misinterpreted this production will probably be equal to a fresh attempt after a short interval.

OBITUARY.

Right Hon. George William Frederick Villiers, K. G., G. C. B., P. C., &c., Earl of Clarendon.

The cable announces the sudden death, on Sunday last, of the Earl of CLARENDON, the English Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

He was born on the 12th of January, 1800, and was, therefore, in the seventy-first year of his age. Descended in the female line from EDWARD HYDE, Earl of CLARENDON, the statesman and historian of the age of CHARLES I. and the civil war, and by the male line from the brother of VILLIERS, Duke of BUCKINGHAM, the witty and versatile favorite of JAMES I., the subject of this memoir united the associations derived from two widely-different historic characters. VILLIERS, Earl of JERSEY, was created Earl of CLARENDON in 1776, and Hon. GEORGE VILLIERS, father of the deceased Earl, was the second son of the preceding. The late Earl was educated at Oxford, and entered the diplomatic service at the age of twenty, as attaché to the English Embassy at St. Petersburg. In 1831 he was intrusted with the important duty of negotiating a treaty of commerce with France, and in 1833 he received the delicate mission of Minister Plenipotentiary to Spain, which was just then agitated by the sanguinary civil war which attended the execution of the will of FERDINAND VII., and the early days of the Ex-Queen ISABELLA. It is related to his honor then in spite of his sympathies with the cause of Queen CHRISTINA and her daughter, he contributed not a little to soften the hardships endured by the Carlist prisoners, and his conduct generally in that difficult crisis of Spanish politics was such that Lord PALMERSTON, from his place in the House of Commons, paid him this tribute in 1837:

"I am bound to say that the respect which Spain has for this country is very much owing to the able and judicious conduct of the representative of the British Government at Madrid."

On the decease of his uncle, he succeeded to the peerage, Dec. 20, 1838, and returning to England in 1839, he took his seat in the House of Lords as Earl of CLARENDON. He was shortly called upon to defend the régime he had assisted to establish in Spain against the attacks of the English supporters of Don CARLOS. His speeches in favor of the constitutional party were found so acceptable in Spain that a gold medal was struck in his honor. In 1840 Lord CLARENDON joined the Cabinet of Lord MELBOURNE as Lord Privy Seal, and in 1846 he was made Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. On Sir ROBERT PEEL'S accession to power, in 1841, he retired from office, but supported all the liberal measures of the Tory Premier—notably, his great enactment for the repeal of the Corn laws. His brother, Hon. CHARLES VILLIERS, was one of the most eloquent and able leaders of the Anti-Corn law agitation. On the formation of a Ministry by Lord JOHN RUSSELL in 1847, Lord CLARENDON was appointed President of the Board of Trade.

A few months later he was called, on the death of the Earl of BESSBOROUGH, to discharge the exceptionally difficult duties of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Famine and discontent were soon to be followed in that country by civil war, and the new Viceroy found the Imperial provision made for the relief of the one about as difficult to administer successfully as that employed in the suppression of the other. Lord CLARENDON was, of course, too rigorous in the suppression of the rebels, and he was far too moderate for the violent counsels of the Orangemen. There is every reason to suppose that Lord CLARENDON'S three years' administration in Ireland gave him more liberal ideas of the true wants of that country than were cherished by any statesman twenty years ago. Evidence of the fact may be found in his steady adhesion to the policy of Mr. GLADSTONE on this question, and in a somewhat remarkable speech made previous to the introduction of the present Government Land bill. After the formation of Lord ABERDEEN'S coalition Ministry in 1852, Lord CLARENDON became Foreign Secretary on the resignation of that office by Lord RUSSELL. He found England committed to a contest with Russia respecting the affairs of the East, and directed with much ability the negotiations with the various European Powers preliminary to the Russian war. Lord CLARENDON'S diplomacy was learned in the school of PALMERSTON, and his long and spirited administration of foreign affairs was wanted caused by the leading maxims of that wily statesman. The following rhyme, which appeared in Punch about the period of his entrance into the "Foreign Office, are now old enough to serve as a historical illustration:

"Gaily Lord CLARENDON puffed his cigar,
Thinking, 'Dear PALMERSTON, I'm safe as a star;
Singing, 'AS PALMERSTON'S pupil I'm come!
Lo! I'm Chancellor, and I'll be home!'

PALMERSTON'S eye on his pupil was kept;
Eye of a weasel that sparingly slept;
Singing, 'I know who mischiefs can cause
This the Foreign and out of the Home!'"

Lord CLARENDON continued to hold the seals of the Foreign Office till Lord DERBY's accession to power in 1858. During that period he signed the treaty of alliance with France, had a memorable interview with the Emperor NAPOLEON on the death of the Czar, took part in the Conference of Paris, and signed the treaties concluded there, and directed the negotiation with this country touching the foreign enlistment question and the affairs of Mexico. The latter were the least successful of Lord CLARENDON'S diplomatic efforts, having become the cause of a temporary coldness between the two Governments, and the dismissal of Mr. CRAMPTON, then British Minister at Washington. Lord CLARENDON was next called to office in 1864, when he turned Lord PALMERSTON'S second Government as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and became again Foreign Secretary in 1865. Retiring with the Ministry which, after Lord PALMERSTON'S death, had been led by Earl RUSSELL and Mr. GLADSTONE, he returned to office for the fourth time on the formation of the Gladstone Cabinet in 1868. On the rejection by our Senate of the treaty negotiated by Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON and Lord STANLEY, it fell to Lord CLARENDON to conduct the renewed correspondence on the Alabama claims. This is sufficiently recent to require no comment.

Lord CLARENDON married, on the 4th of June, 1838, Lady CATHERINE GRENVILLE, eldest daughter of JAMES WALTER, first Earl of VERULAM, and widow of JOHN FORSTER FARNAM. He had four children, of whom the eldest, EDWARD, Baron HYDE, becomes fourth Earl of CLARENDON.

SOLAR UNPLEASANTNESS.

The Uncomfortable Temperature of Yesterday—Effects of the Heat—Comparative Table—The Thunder, Lightning and Rain of Last Evening.

The temperature yesterday was uncomfortably warm, though not so much so as during the preceding forty-eight hours. The thermometer reached as high a point as 88 in the shade.

The following sudden deaths were reported to the Coroners yesterday, nearly all caused by the heat: Infant child of F. FURER, at No. 201 Forsyth-street; DANIEL RYAN, aged twenty-eight, died at No. 212 West Tenth-street; MARGARET HARE, aged twenty-two, at No. 203 Cherry-street; a child, aged seven months, at No. 20 Oak-street; CARL FURBOM, aged forty-five, and a Prussian, found dead in bed at No. 26 Greenwich-street; a child at No. 97 Jefferson-street.

An excitement prevailed at Yonkers yesterday morning in consequence of the death of a child of NATHAN WILLIAM, who, it was supposed, had died from injuries sustained at the hands of its father. Coroner SMITH, of Yonkers, held an inquest upon the body, and the jury found that the child died from congestion of the brain produced by exposure to the heat, and the jury censured the parents for culpable neglect of the child.

LOUIS METZE, of No. 67 Prince-street, eleven years of age, was prostrated, yesterday afternoon, and was taken home.

FLORA MCCONNELL, nineteen years of age, was overcome by heat during the afternoon at the New-Haven depot, and was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

JACOB WINA was stricken down by the sun in the afternoon, while driving a cart in Harlem-lane, and was taken to his home at One Hundred and Twelfth-street and Fifth-avenue.

HENRY FINKEL, a German, aged thirty years, died, last evening, at No. 44 Thomas-street, from the effects of the heat.

GEO. WALLACE was overcome by the the heat, while laying brick on a new building in Eighty-third-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues. He was taken home.

ALBERT SOREY, of No. 156 Third-street, was prostrated at the corner of Second-avenue and First-street, and was taken home by the Police.

The following statement taken from GILSON'S tables, will show the mean temperature of June for the last ten years:

	8 A. M.	8 P. M.
1861	68	76 18-25
1862	62 22-30	74 14-30
1863	63 18-30	74 21-30
1864	62 23-30	77 23-30
1865	68 12-30	81 29-30
1866	63 27-30	77
1867	63 20-30	76 29-30
1868	64 1-30	75 12-30
1869	64 16-30	76 1-30
1870 (for 26 days)	69 22-26	81 23-26

It will thus be seen that so far the month of June, 1870, has been as nearly as possible of the same temperature with the same month in 1868, and very much warmer than in any other year since 1860.

At 9 A. M. on Saturday it was warmer in New-York than in New-Orleans or in Havana, or in any at any point reported in the country except Savannah, where the temperature was one degree higher than here. As the day advanced, the mercury seems to have risen beyond its extreme elevation in New-York at several points. Here at 3 P. M. it marked 94 degrees. Washington reports 95, Philadelphia, 98, Springfield, Mass., and Bangor, Me., 100!

The following was the state of the weather at the various points throughout the country, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning:

Place.	Wind.	Weather.	Ther.
Halifax, N. S.	N. W.	Cloudy	62
Portland, Me.	N.	Clear	68
Boston, Mass.	N. E.	Cloudy	72
New-York	N. W.	Cloudy	75
Philadelphia	S.	Cloudy	78
Wilmington, Del.	N. E.	Cloudy	78

Chicago	S. W.	Clear	68
Detroit, Mich.	W.	Clear	70
Mobile	N. W.	Clear	80
New-Orleans	W.	Clear	80

At 5 o'clock yesterday clouds began to gather, and the temperature soon sensibly moderated. An hour later, it grew suddenly dark, and a high wind arose, raising clouds of dust in the streets, and admonishing pedestrians of the necessity of speedily reaching shelter from the impending rain. It soon began to fall copiously, accompanied by thunder and lightning; and after the streets had been thoroughly washed, it suddenly ceased, and a brilliant rainbow made its appearance. The air had been thoroughly cooled, the sun had sunk below the horizon, but his parting rays painted the sky with exquisite and varied tints, making the twilight hour the pleasantest of the whole day. As the night came down it grew warmer again, and it continued sultry till a breeze of morning stirred.

The flag-staff on TIFFANY'S new building was struck by lightning last evening, during the thunder-storm, and completely demolished, but very singularly, no further damage was done.

The Weather in Other Localities.

MCCONNELSBURG, Fulton County, Penn., June 27.—A severe storm occurred here yesterday afternoon, accompanied with rain and hail. It came from the north and swept through the valley. About one-half of the Court-house roof was torn off and carried some distance. The new M. E. Church was badly injured. The walls of both sides were removed from the foundation.

CONCORD, N. H., June 27.—The copious showers of Saturday night and Sunday were greatly needed in this section.

AUGUSTA, June 27.—Thermometer today, 90°.

RICHMOND, June 27.—Thermometer today, 90°. A heavy thunder and rain storm this evening.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 27.—The thermometer at 11 o'clock this morning was at 90° in the shade. One case of sun-stroke is reported.

Rev. Wm. Arnot on Water and its Uses—Lecture at Association Hall.

A very respectable audience assembled, last evening, at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, Twenty-third-street and Fourth-avenue, to listen to a lecture by Rev. WILLIAM ARNOT, of Edinburgh, Scotland, who took as his theme, "Water—Its Place and Power, and Uses in the System of Nature." The reverend gentleman, after being introduced by Rev. Mr. HOME, who eulogized him for the stand he took in Scotland in favor of the Union cause during the late war, proceeded to say that the world is all a beautiful house constructed by the Creator, and man was while sojourning in this life. Of all the elements of the Creator fire and water have been more used for His purposes in connection with the earth than any other. In describing the process of creation, Mr. ARNOT said that the low places were prepared to receive the waters which were "collected together" by the throwing up of mountains beside them, by forming the valleys into which the waters were collected. He then illustrated the working of political society by comparing the operation of contrary political principles to the working of opposite forces in nature. The chemical affinity of combinations of water and heat take a leading part in the great works of nature. The icebergs from the polar regions have their venue southward, and are designed to cool the air where, in the tropics, it is overheated. The growth of the very fruit and grain is due to the presence of water, which goes up from the soil through microscopic channels, and gives it life by taking up with it the fertilizing properties of the earth. Water, in fact, is an unwearied worker in all the operations of nature. The lecturer then gave several illustrations of the great benefit which the world in countless ways receives from water. If the story of a drop of water, tracing its course from the solid state to the liquid, and thence to the vapor form, could be truly written, it would turn out a sensational biography. Water is not dainty in its tastes. It will do its work in unclean as well as clean places. The lecturer then made a spiritual application of the moral to be derived from the many uses of water, and closed his discourse by eulogizing this country and its free institutions.

Rev. Dr. ADAMS then thanked the lecturer for the interest he had imparted, moving this nation in the day of its tribulation, and also for the lecture of the evening. Rev. Dr. JOHN HALL and Rev. Dr. GANGE followed in the same strain, after which the audience retired.

WASHINGTON.

Some Secret History of the Sale Mountain Business—The Truth About that Protocol—The Tax and Tariff Bill in the Senate—A Free Salt Bill Called for by the House—The Appropriation Bills—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Some of the newspapers which never neglect an opportunity to assail the President are seeking to make capital out of the protocol which was signed in September last by President BAEZ and Gen. BABCOCK, and which was to have formed the basis of the treaty which followed. Eliminated from the testimony and published without explanation, as it has been by the enemies of the President, this protocol is rendered susceptible of an interpretation which the facts in the case entirely refute. These facts are as follows: When Gen. BABCOCK first visited San Domingo, BAEZ was exceedingly cautious on the matter of annexation, and implored the utmost secrecy on the subject, for the reason that, if the fact of the proposed treaty became known before its outcome was insured here, the Cabral party would close it as a pretext for inflaming the Dominicans, and it might render his tenure insecure. He at first proposed to give Gen. BABCOCK only verbal communications for our Government, but the latter informed him that there must be something more positive if it was to serve as a basis of negotiation, whereupon BAEZ drew up, or caused to be drawn up, the so-called protocol, which has been printed. The propositions are BAEZ'S propositions exclusively, and the claims promising that President GRANT should use his influence in advance to secure the ratification of the treaty, was BAEZ'S own idea and language, engendered by his fears that, unless action was speedy, the project would fall through difficulties of his own. This paper was a simple private document for the information of the President and Secretary of State, and it will be observed does not bear the official signature of either BAEZ or BABCOCK. When it was laid before the President he immediately rejected its propositions, so far as his action was sought to be bound or indicated by it. This fact, which belongs to the secret history of the negotiation, it becomes necessary to state, in view of the perver sion of the document itself. Accepting only the information it contained as a guide, Secretary FISH then prepared a regular treaty, which was sent down by Gen. BABCOCK on his second visit in November; and save a few immaterial alterations, it is the same which was signed, and which is now before the Senate. The protocol never had any official validity; it never had the President's sanction; it never was acted on by him; and the attempt to show by it that he agreed to exercise an improper influence upon Senators is an utter failure. It was a confidential document of that nature which always precedes the formal negotiation of a treaty, just as the protocol of the Alabama claims treaty which Mr. SEWARD rejected, preceded that treaty. It should never have been made public any more than the private conversations of the Cabinet. How it got out is involved in mystery. It was not called for by the Committee, nor furnished by the Secretary of State. It was shown in confidence to Mr. SUMNER some months ago, when his conversations led people to believe he was favorable to the treaty, and it was foisted upon the Committee by Mr. SCHURZ without reason or explanation, and apparently with the deliberate purpose of stabbing the President. It had no relation to the memorial or case of Mr. HATCH, which was under investigation, and was brought out in such a way that its malicious purpose was sure to be fully accomplished before the facts of the case which surrounded it, and which were not brought out with it, could be made public and neutralize its purpose. There is nothing whatever in it, or in the President's subsequent action on the subject, to warrant the assumption attempted to be drawn from it, that any illegitimate action was ever even contemplated by him. Senator SCHURZ and his triple alliance will have to try again.

THE TAX AND TARIFF BILLS.

The Senate resumed their order on the San Domingo treaty today, and, on the appeal of Mr. SHERMAN, went on with the Tax bill. The recommendation of the Finance Committee that the tax on gross receipts be retained as one of the items to make up for the income tax was accepted, and the remainder of the Tax bill was agreed to as reported. The tariff sections were then taken up, and the amendments of the Committee were agreed to until the sugar clause was reached. The Committee recommended that the House provision reducing the rate be stricken out, which with the $6,000,000 retained on gross receipts would about compensate for the $17,000,000 lost by the income tax. In the course of his lucid remarks on this point, Senator SHERMAN warned the Senate not to vote blindly for every reduction proposed, because the result would be to leave a deficit in the revenue, and thereby entail serious damage to the public credit. He showed by official figures that the revenue for the ensuing year, if the laws were left unchanged, could not be expected to yield more than $398,000,000. The expenditures, granting that they do not go beyond the limit of the proposed appropriations, would be $328,000,000. The one per cent. of the public debt to be provided for would require $64,000,000, making a total requirement for the ensuing year of $392,000,000. This left a margin of $6,000,000 for the reduction of taxation. Of this amount, $3,500,000 had already been absorbed by the reductions passed in the House and proposed in in the Senate, exclusive of the loss of income tax. To insist, therefore, on reducing the rates on sugar as proposed, would simply leave a deficit of $12,000,000 instead of a surplus of revenue. A general discussion ensued on the subject, the result of which was that the Senate refused, by yeas 26, nays 20, to stake out the House provisions reducing the rates on sugar, thereby adding, substantially, $11,000,000 more to the total reduction, or $30,000,000 in all. This action leaves the bill in such dangerous and incongruous shape that a motion to strike out the first tariff section entirely is likely to be made, in order that a conference committee may consider the nature of the conflicting propositions for reduction. Mr. SHERMAN will probably press the bill to a conclusion to-morrow.

SALT ON THE FREE LIST.

The most satisfactory work of the House today was the adoption of a resolution declaring that salt should be placed on the free list. When New-York was reached in the call of States, Mr. REEVES offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Ways and Means to report a bill placing salt on the free list, which was agreed to by the large vote of 160 to 45. The result was quite a surprise to the special champions of the salt interest.

THE JUDICIAL CURSEFIX.

The bill which passed the Senate some weeks ago, providing for a change in the Judicial Circuits of the United States, was today killed in the House. Mr. BUTLER reported it back from the Judiciary Committee with a recommendation that it do not pass, and it was accordingly laid on the table. So there is to be no change in the circuits as now constituted.

SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATIONS.

The House spent the greater portion of the day on the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, and almost finished it. The Capital removers made their usual onslaught on the appropriations for the public buildings and grounds of Washington, but were left in a beggarly minority of nine, headed by such statesmen as FRANKLIN and BENJAMIN, of Missouri, and COBB, of Wisconsin.

THE FUNDING BILL.

The Funding bill is fixed as the special order for Wednesday after the morrow.

DELAY IN THE SENATE.

This week will show the House abundantly able to adjourn on the 16th prox., but great doubts are expressed as to the ability of the Senate to close up by that time. Even the heedlessness of its business seems to have no influence in stopping the stream of profitless talk. In the Senate, more than an hour was wasted today in debating whether an evening session should be held to consider the Southern Pacific Railroad. The railroad men finally prevailed, however, and the session was ordered.

THE NEW-YORK SUB-TREASURYSHIP.

The President today withdrew the nomination of A. R. CONNELLY to be Sub-Treasurer, because that gentleman has finally decided to decline the position. It has not transpired who will be nominated in his stead. Some people incline to believe it will be either Hon. THOS. HILLHOUSE or Judge EDMONDS.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR APPROPRIATIONS.

The Senate Committee on Commerce have finished the River and Harbor bill, and it will probably be reported to-morrow. They make a considerable number of comparatively unimportant changes in the House bill, but make little alteration in the aggregate amount appropriated. The Committee will make a strenuous effort to pass the bill, as they do not believe in the method which has been pursued for the past two years of making a general appropriation to be distributed by the Engineer Bureau.

GENERAL MAIL STEAM-SHIP BILL.

The Joint Subcommittee on the Decline of Commerce have agreed to the amendment to Senator CHANDLER'S bill, given in these dispatches yesterday, in the nature of a General Mail Steam-ship bill. The measure, with this provision, will shortly be submitted to the Senate.

THE INCOME TAX IN NEW-YORK.

Supervisor DUTCHER reports to the Revenue Bureau some interesting facts about the income tax in New-York. In the Second District, comprising Brooklyn and New-York City, the total increase for this year has been $231,000. The Eighth District shows a falling off of $112,974; the First, $35,000; and the Twelfth, $24,000. The increase in the remaining districts make up the deficiency. The income tax from the Twelfth District for the year will amount to $9,718,230. A. T. STEWART does not return $100,000 income, while CLAFLIN, MELLER & Co., and hundreds of other large houses, show but small profits. Thousands of merchants swear to losses for the year. Mr. DUTCHER says it has been a terrible year for the merchant princes as well as the small traders.

PERSONAL.

The President was at the Capital today urging Congress to take final action on the Indian Appropriation bill which is now in Conference Committee. Gen. SHERMAN, who returned today from his trip to Boston, will visit the plains and the Pacific coast after Congress adjourns. Mrs. SHERMAN and family will spend the Summer at Oakland, Cal. Secretary ROBESON has gone to New-Jersey. Geo. H. PENDLETON is in town, on his way to attend the Commencement exercises at the University of Virginia, where he delivers an oration on Thursday. He was on the floor of the House today.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

EXPENSE OF THE CENSUS.

The Secretary of the Interior today communicated to the House a letter from the Superintendent of the Census, asking an appropriation of $2,000,000 to defray the expenses of taking the Ninth Census. It is stated therein that the expense of taking the Eighth Census was $1,650,000.

RECEIPTS OF TELEGRAPH COMPANIES.

The Revenue Commissioner, in reply to the House resolution whether any of the telegraph companies having their offices in the City of New-York, have refused or neglected to report to the Assessor the amount of gross receipts, states that the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company neglected for five months to make such returns. The neglect, however, was reported by the Company itself, with such explanations as to show that it was not willful, but owing to business circumstances. The tax of $200 was subsequently paid, since which time the Company has regularly made returns.

THE MEXICAN CLAIM COMMISSION.

The United States and Mexican Claim Commission met at noon today. The Commissioners and counsel were present, but nothing of public interest transpired save the reading of a letter of Dr. F. A. LIEBER, of New-York, accepting the office of umpire. The Commission adjourned until to-morrow noon.

THE HATCH CASE.

The majority and minority reports in the Hatch case, together with the testimony, were laid on the tables of Senators this morning, but some of them desiring to examine the document before resuming consideration of the San Domingo treaty, voted against going into Executive Session today on that subject.

NOMINATIONS.

The following nominations were sent in today: George Conwell, to be Collector of Internal Revenue for the Sixth District of Massachusetts, vice N. S. Howe, to be removed; First Lieut. W. L. Kenly, to be Captain in the Tenth Cavalry; Second Lieut. Oliver Wood, to be First Lieutenant in the Fifth Artillery.

Postmasters—William D. Hitchcock, at Alpena, Mich.; Wm. H. Cox, at Washington, Ohio; Richard E. Tyler, at Alexandria, Va.; A. S. Allen, at Boyne, Ohio.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, June 27.

The Senate met at 11 o'clock. Petitions were presented and appropriately referred as follows:

From the New-York Legislature, relating to the improvement of the Fox and Wisconsin Rivers; by citizens of New-York, praying for a new United States District Court; from soldiers of the late War, calling attention to the Bounty bill.

RAILROAD VS. TAX BILLS.

A motion by Mr. HOWARD to hold an evening session today to dispose of the Texas Pacific and the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad bills was objected to by Mr. SHERMAN as tending to delay the Tax bill, and gave rise to a long debate. The motion was finally agreed to.

THE TAX BILL.

At 1¾ o'clock the Tax bill came up as unfinished business, and Mr. SHERMAN, Chairman of the Finance Committee, stated as the result of the consultation in regard to the bill, that they had agreed to let all the income taxes go and as a substitute to retain the tax on sugar as it is now, and also the tax on gross receipts. He said that the House proposition for a classification of the tax on sugar had been objected to by business men throughout the country, and the Louisiana sugar planters and refiners had encountered equally strong opposition. The remaining sections of the bill would clear up the ambiguities in reference to the special tax on the dividends of corporations, such as insurance companies and relative to the Shakers and other religious societies. Instead of striking out the first tariff section entirely, the whole subject to the determination of a Committee of Conference, he suggested that the Senate should proceed under the five minutes' rule of debate to act upon each section separately.

Mr. HOWE made an argument for retaining the income tax.

Mr. SHERMAN suggested that the question had been decided. He had no hope that the vote o the Senate would be changed.

Mr. DRAKE thought there was reason to hope that the vote would be changed.

At 1¾ o'clock a motion to go into Executive Session was rejected—yeas 28, nays 28.

The income tax sections were then stricken out without a division.

Mr. SHERMAN offered a new section to continue the tax on corporations and salaries during this year.

Mr. BAYARD opposed the continuance of the tax especially in justice to the salaried officers of the Government who are now poorly paid.

Mr. SHERMAN said the personal income tax was being collected for the present year, and the income taxes should come at the same time. Besides, the provision had already been adopted by the Senate.

The amendment was agreed to, and various others submitted by Mr. SHERMAN to carry out the recommendations of the Finance Committee.

The amendment of the Finance Committee to authorize the consolidation of collection districts was agreed to.

The following are the two sections adopted, as substitutes for the income tax section stricken out:

"First—That sections 120, 121, 122, and 123, of the act of June 30, 1864, and amended by acts of July 13, 1866, and March 2, 1867, shall be construed to include the salaries of officers of the Government of the United States (district court), from soldiers of the late War, calling attention to the Bounty bill.

"First—That sections 120, 121, 122, and 123, of the act of June 30, 1864, and amended by acts of July 13, 1866, and March 2, 1867, shall be construed to include the salaries of officers of the Government of the United States (district court), including judges and district attorneys, and salaries of Government officers, for and during the year 1870, and that all such taxes shall be collected in the manner now, or hereafter, provided by law.

"Second—That, for the purpose of allowing deductions from the incomes of any religious or social community holding all their property, and the income therein mentioned, being taxed on Stylends of expenditures, jointly and in common, such Stylends of the aforesaid community or society shall be considered one person, and any remaining fractional number of such persons, less than five, over such groups of five, shall be held to constitute a family, and a deduction of one thousand dollars shall be allowed to each of said families. Any taxes on the income, gains and profits of such societies, now due and unpaid, shall be assessed and collected according to this provision.

THE TARIFF.

The tariff sections having been reached, the amendments reported from the Committee were then taken up, and the duty on five cents on chicory, succory, dandelion, root and acorn coffee, raw, ground, or burned, or prepared, and on all substitutes for coffee was agreed to.

Mr. SHERMAN endeavored to withdraw the amendment to reduce the duties on sugar according to the Senate Committee classification so as to allow the rate to remain as under the existing laws.

Mr. HAMLIN objected to the withdrawal of the section, and asked to have a vote upon it. He argued in favor of reducing the duty on sugar, believing the receipts of 1870 per year would exceed those of the preceding year, while the surplus in the Treasury could be drawn upon if necessary.

Mr. SHERMAN opposed the reduction upon the ground that the estimated receipts from revenue would not warrant it. He believed that increased expenditures would keep pace with any increased receipts.

Further remarks were made by Mr. THURMAN in favor of a general reduction of taxation, and that the duty on sugar would compel people to pay bounty to a few sugar refiners in the United States that they might make fortunes.

Mr. MORRILL said that only refiner in the United States was opposed to the classification both of the Senate and of the House.

At 5½ the Senate voted upon the Senate Committee amendment, striking out the paragraph in the House bill, classifying the tax on sugars. The amendment was rejected—yeas 26, nays 28. The classification therefore remains. The following is the vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Abbott, Anthony, Bayard, Cole, Conkling, Corbett, Cragin, Drake, Fenton, Gilbert, Harris, Howard, Howe, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Osborn, Pomeroy, Pool, Ramsey, Rice, Ross, Sawyer, Schurz, Sherman, Stewart, Stockton, Warner, Wilkinson—28.

NAYS—Messrs. Barnum, Carpenter, Chandler, Conkling, Davis, Edmunds, Ferry, Fowler, Hamilton of Maryland, Hamlin, Harlan, Howe, Howell, Johnston, McCreery, Morton, Patton, Pool, Ramsey, Sprague, Spencer, Stewart, Sumner, Thayer, Thurman, Tipton, Vickers, Willey, Wilson, Yates—28.

Mr. YATES moved an amendment prohibiting bounties all taxes on tea, coffee, and sugar.

Mr. SHERMAN remarked that the amendment would strike off one-half of the revenue, and if adopted the whole bill should fail.

Mr. YATES advocated his amendment at length.

THE DEATH OF REPRESENTATIVE HEATON.

At 4 o'clock the House resolution announcing the death of Hon. DAVID HEATON, Representative from North Carolina, was received, and after eulogies of the deceased and the adoption of the usual resolutions of condolence, the Senate at 4½ took a recess until evening.

EVENING SESSION.

THE TEXAS PACIFIC RAILROAD.

At 7½ o'clock the Senate resumed the consideration of the Texas Pacific Railroad bill. The question being upon Mr. WILSON'S amendment to make the gauge of the road uniform at five feet, from Marshall, Texas, to San Diego, California. After discussion the amendment was adopted by yeas 36 to nays 7.

An amendment by Mr. STEWART, authorizing the Southern Pacific Railroad of California, to connect with the Pacific by a branch road, was adopted.

Also an amendment by Mr. SAWYER, that all iron and steel used shall be purchased in the United States.

The bill then passed.

The Atlantic and Pacific Railroad bill was made the order for the morning hour of Tuesday. At 11:40 the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. JOHNSON—To regulate the manufacture of brandy from grapes, peaches, and other fruit.

By Mr. WELLS—For the establishment of a Department of Revenue.

By Mr. MAYNARD—To punish the collection of illegal taxes on passengers.

By Mr. KERR—To provide for distribution pro rata of all moneys paid or to be paid by the Republic of Venezuela on claims of citizens of the United States under the award of the mixed Commission, under the treaty of April 25, 1866.

TARIFF ON SALT.

Mr. REEVES offered a preamble and resolution, directing the Committee on Ways and Means to report to the House forthwith a bill reducing the present duties on all classes of salt fifty per cent. The previous question was seconded by a vote of 71 to 67.

Mr. MCCARTHY moved to lay the resolution on the table, which was rejected by a vote of 59 yeas to 105 nays.

Mr. FERRIS moved to reconsider the vote whereby the main question was ordered. Mr. COX moved to lay that motion on the table. Mr. COX's motion was agreed to—yeas 105, nays 57.

The resolution was then adopted—yeas, 160; nays, 45. The following is the vote in detail:

THE FUNDING BILL.

Mr. SCHENCK proposed that the Funding bill be fixed for consideration to-morrow.

Mr. COX inquired whether the bill was the same as was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. SCHENCK replied that it was, with a slight verbal amendment.

Mr. BENJAMIN objected on behalf of the Committee of Elections.

Mr. SCHENCK moved to suspend the rules.

The rules were suspended and the bill was reported back and made the special order for to-morrow.

BILLS FROM THE SENATE.

Mr. KELSEY, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported back the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, and moved that the Senate amendments be non-concurred in, and a Committee of Conference ordered. Agreed to.

On motion of Mr. KERR the Senate amendments to the bill for additional terms of United States Courts in Indiana were taken from the Speaker's table and concurred in.

NEW-YORK CUSTOM-HOUSE.

Mr. COX offered a preamble and resolution in reference to the carriage of the New-York Custom-house, and requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to communicate the results of the investigation into it, and his orders and letters in the premises, and whether his instructions have been complied with, to the end that legislation may be had if necessary. Agreed to.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES.

Mr. MAYNARD, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported the bill to relieve the estate of Louis M. Rose from legacy and succession tax and stamp tax. He explained that the property was church property devised by one Catholic priest to another, and by him conveyed to the Augustinian society of Lawrence, Mass., and of New-York. Passed.

Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, from the Judiciary Committee, reported back adversely the Senate bill to change the judicial circuits. Laid on the table.

ELECTION FRAUDS.

Mr. DAVIS, of New-York, asked leave to introduce a bill to punish crimes and frauds at certain elections.

Mr. BROOKS, of New-York, objected, saying that if his colleague wanted to fix the elections of the New-York Legislature the House had better repeal the adjournment resolution, and postpone adjournment till November.

SUNDRY CIVIL EXPENSE BILL.

The House then, at 1¼ o'clock, went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. SUPPLEE in the chair, on the Sundry Civil Expenses Appropriation bill. The items in regard to the Washington Aqueduct gave rise to a discussion as to the inefficient supply of water to the city, which was attributed to the fact that the distributing mains are not equal to either the demand or supply.

Mr. COX moved a substitute to appropriate under various heads $150,000.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, moved an amendment to the substitute, requiring the money required for water rents to be applied to the improvement and repair of the aqueduct, until otherwise provided by law. The amendment was agreed to, and the substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The Capitol.

The items for work on the Capital were attacked by some of the Missouri members—Messrs. MCCORMICK, BENJAMIN, and FINKELNBURG—and were defended by Messrs. DAWES and SCHENCK. Mr. SCHENCK said, that so far as the building was concerned, he was proud of it, and that he wished it to be complete, not only as a building, but as to the setting of the building, the grounds, terraces, &c. He regretted not having been in the House to record his vote against that vandal vote by which the House of Representatives had refused to take in the adjoining grounds. In a very talk about removing the Capital, he had never regarded it as anything but bosh. So far as distance was concerned it mattered very little where the Capital was. Railroads had pretty much abolished all distances, and the telegraph had abolished all time.

A proposition by Mr. FARNSWORTH to widen the doors between the halls of the House and Senate elicited considerable discussion, Mr. DAWES remarking, on information received from the architect, that that would endanger the dome, and Mr. WOOD assuring the gentleman on the Republican side, that they would not have occasion to pass from the House to the Senate. He had thought that they might consider themselves lucky if they ever got back to the House. Mr. FARNSWORTH withdrew the motion.

Mr. FARNSWORTH offered a document to the Clerk's desk and had read, a letter from EDWARD CLARK, architect of the Capitol extension, stating that it must have been a mistake which led to the remark that he had expressed the disagreement of the doorways between the halls of the House and the Senate as endangering the dome. On the contrary, he had perfected a plan for increasing the rotunda, one of the features of which, was the enlargement of the doorways.

Agricultural Department.

The items under the head of the Agricultural Department gave rise to a discussion between Messrs. HOLMAN, DAWES, WILSON, of Ohio, and others, on that it was found necessary to rise and go into the House, when the debate was closed on the paragraph. The House immediately went back into Committee on the bill. The items for the Agricultural Department were agreed to without amendment.

Private Claims.

On motion of Mr. BENJAMIN, the item of $22,000 for a private claim of A. P. HOTALING and others, for the Indian service in California, was struck out.

A discussion arose between Messrs. FARNSWORTH and DAWES in reference to an item in the bill to pay PAUL S. FORBES the balance due him under a contract with the Navy Department for a steam-engine for the Algonquin, $7,250. Mr. FARNSWORTH moved to strike it out. He criticised the action of the Committee on Appropriations in accepting the statement of the Chairman of the Committee (Mr. DAWES) was like Joe Bagstock, "Sly, Sir, devilish sly."

Mr. DAWES retorted on Mr. FARNSWORTH as being so constituted that he could not believe any one else to be honest, and intimated that he did not desire to be measured by the gentleman from Illinois or by his standard of morality. The item had been reported because the Secretary of the Navy said it was to liquidate a balance due this man (not a claim, but a debt.

Mr. FARNSWORTH said he had not attacked any body, and that the unusual wrath and excitement displayed by the Chairman from Massachusetts was entirely unnecessary. He did not suppose every man dishonest, and his friend from Massachusetts took unnecessary embrace at what he had said. He had said he thought him sly, and the fact that when the bill was reported the gentleman said there was no special claim in it, seemed to indicate it.

After some further discussion the motion to strike out the item was rejected.

The Committee rose, leaving still six pages of the bill unfinished.

THE CURRENCY BILL.

Mr. GARFIELD, from the Committee of Conference on the Currency bill, made report and said he would call it up for action to-

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The attendance at the Exchange yesterday was quite large, although no business was transacted. The sale as extensively advertised by Messrs. MULLER, WEBBER & Co. of City lots on Ninth-avenue, Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets, owing to the absence of the referee, did not take place, and many who had been induced to be present, expecting that as this was a legal sale, it would certainly take place, were naturally disappointed. No definite adjournment of the sale was announced.

The sale of property at White Plains, advertised for Saturday last by JAMES M. MILLER, was not so well attended as was hoped for, and the lots were withdrawn. The property is a valuable one, and the auctioneer acted judiciously in taking the course he did. Although a number of persons were present who would have bid on the lots had they been offered, they would have been sacrificed, and the result of the transaction an unsatisfactory one to all parties.

Today, should the weather prove favorable, the sale of lots by MALLORY & BLAUVELT at Tarrytown, will undoubtedly be well attended. These lots, although small, are very pleasantly desirable. The property is all on high ground, in the midst of a thriving town, easy of access to New-York, surrounded by fine residences, near to schools, markets and depots, commands extensive views, and is conducive for the humanizing comforts of buildings. All these advantages combined render the sale worthy of public attention, and should command a large attendance. The sale takes place on the ground, beginning at 1½ P. M., and persons desiring to be present can take the day boat or the 11 A. M. train on the Hudson River Railway, from Thirty-fourth-street.

The sale by A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BROTHER of New-Jersey lots at Dundee Lake and Mellick Park near Paterson, also took place today, and to those wishing to locate in this vicinity this property offers many advantages. For this sale a train will leave the City at 10 M., for which free passes can be obtained at the auctioneers, and on the arrival of which a collation will be served. Commencing at 1 P. M. the sale will be conducted at the day boat or the 11 A. M. train on the Hudson River Railway, from Thirty-fourth-street.

NEW-YORK COLLEGE.

The Kelly Prize Debate at Steinway Hall.

Steinway Hall was tolerably well filled last evening by ladies and gentlemen, assembled to hear the "Kelly Prize Debate," between the literary societies of the College of the City of New-York. These debates, of which this was the third, were established in 1868 by JAMES KELLY, Esq., who placed in the hands of the Board of Trustees of the College $1,000, to be invested and the annual income thereof forever devoted to the providing of two gold medals, to be awarded as prizes for excellence in debating, and designated as the first and second Kelly medals. The speakers contending for these medals are chosen by the two literary societies, three from each society, and the six so chosen are the only competitors. The President of the Board of Trustees selects the subject and submits it to the Faculty for approval.

These medals are awarded by a committee of gentlemen appointed by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and having no connection with the College. The question was, "Is the whole condition of society, resulting from the adoption of popular forms of government favorable to the growth of a splendid national literature?"

The gentlemen who took part in last evening's discussion were: In the affirmative, MICHAEL H. CARDOZO, CHARLES A. DORENUS and CHARLES B. JESUP, of the Phrenocosmian Society. On the negative side, GRAHAM MCADAM, CHARLES H. NEYLENCE and ROBERT E. WEBSTER, of the Clionian Society. The judges were Hon. CHAS. TRACY, Hon. JOS. P. DALY, Hon. R. B. MAYO, ROBERT MCGENNIS, Esq., and JAMES G. BARNUM, Esq. The Committee were THOS. E. WHITE, Jr., Chairman, ISAAC C. HALSTEAD, WM. H. WILCOX and HENRY OARDOZO, with RAYMOND F. PURDY as Grand Marshal. After the overture by the orchestra of Steinway Hall, under the direction of Mr. GERICKE, the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. MARTIN SUMNER. At its conclusion the Chairman introduced CHARLES E. JESUP, who read a paper on the affirmative side of the question written by MICHAEL H. CARDOZO, one of the chosen debaters, who was prevented by illness from attending in person. After every debater had been heard, a brief recess was taken, during which the orchestra played some selections from "Genevieve." The discussion was then resumed. At its termination there was more music, when the benediction was pronounced. The judges reserve their decision until the College Commencement.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

Over 2,500 alien passengers arrived at this port, yesterday, and 2,316 were landed at Castle Garden. From the steamship Columbia, Glasgow, there were 412; the City of Paris, Liverpool, 712; the Idaho, Liverpool, 564; the ship Edith, Liverpool, 126; and the bark Hansburg, Bremen, 146. The steamer Paraguay, from London, arrived, but was detained at Quarantine, in consequence of having small-pox on board.

The Lincoln Union, an association composed of Republican gentlemen residing in the Ninth Ward, went on its first annual excursion, to Bartian Beach Grove, yesterday. The steamer Sleepy Hollow, and the barge William Myers, were employed for the occasion, and left the foot of West Fourth-street about 9 o'clock, A. M., having on board a large and most respectable party of excursionists. They made the circuit of Staten Island before landing at the Grove, and during the trip nearly all were assiduous in their devotions to Terpsichore, WALLACE'S band furnishing the music for the occasion. After spending some time at the Grove the company returned to this City about 8 o'clock last evening, nothing having occurred to mar the pleasure of the day.

The First Assembly District Union Republican Association held a regular meeting at No. 191 Franklin-street, last evening. Mr. NATHAN KIMBERLEY, Jr., the First Vice-President, occupied the chair. The Committee on Membership reported over thirty names of persons desirous to join the organization. All these were reported by the Committee last evening were admitted. A resolution was adopted that hereafter all persons favorably reported must appear at a regular meeting and sign the roll. The Association adjourned to meet on the second Monday of September next. In the meantime other and more permanent rooms are to be secured for the use of the organization.

One of the legitimate effects of the recent hot weather has been an increased demand for ice; and this, in turn, has given rise to a still further advance of the cost of that needful commodity. On Saturday nearly 4,000,000 pounds were dealt out from the carts in this City alone, and 1,000,000 or thereabouts more could have been readily disposed of, at "fancy" figures. As it was, many of the carmen, taking advantage of circumstances, defrauded their employers and stated customers alike, by withholding the usual Saturday evening supply and selling it to outside purchasers, for their own personal profit. This double-dealing, of course, greatly enraged the lady-housekeepers, who would, doubtless, have thrown the ice-men to as many lamp-posts, could they have laid hands upon them, on Saturday night, or even on Sunday. As it was, the delinquents were soundly berated when they made their appearance, yesterday morning, with a thousand foolish excuses. The companies threatened to push the price to $2 per hundred before the middle of July—which is certainly a bit of coolness on their part.

JOHN REAL will be brought up for sentence, before the Supreme Court, on Thursday morning next, at 10 o'clock. Ex-Judge STUART REAL'S counsel, conveyed this intelligence to the unfortunate man yesterday afternoon at the Tombs. REAL simply remarked, warmly grasping the Judge's by the hand, "Judge, I am perfectly resigned; I know my doom is fixed; I knew it all along. I trust I am at peace with God, which, after all, is the only thing of interest for me now. I can never thank you sufficiently, Judge, for your kindness."

By one of those unfortunate mistakes of typography that are liable to occur, even with extraordinary care, in a newspaper-office, the TIMES of Sunday last did great injustice to the proprietor of the Washington Hotel, at the lower end of Broadway. The writer was made to speak of the house as "third" class, when, in reality, he had designated it as "first" class. The difference is, of course, an essential one, and we hasten to atone for the unintentional error of the types.

The first annual excursion of the West Fifty-third-street Baptist Church to Long Island takes place next Thursday. The children at once raised an alarm, and the druggist sent her an emetic, but she refused to take it. Roundsman WESTON visited the house, and finally succeeded in getting the woman to swallow the emetic, which saved her life. She was then placed under the charge of Dr. BIRKEILDEN.
